How Free Trade Agreements and Customs Unions Differ?

Both free trade agreements and customs unions are trade agreements between trading nations. In a free trade agreement, member nations trade freely among themselves. Each nation, however, sets its own trade policy with non-member nations. In a customs union, member nations trade freely with each other and with non-member nations. They also have agreed to remove all trade barriers among themselves. They also have agreed to have a single trade policy with non-member nations.

What is NAFTA?

The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) is a trade agreement signed by Mexico, Canada, and the United States. It was signed in 1994 and entered into force in 1994. It is a free trade agreement between three nations and is the largest free trade agreement in the world. It covers a wide range of trade issues, including trade in goods, services, and intellectual property. It also covers trade in investment, trade in labor, and trade in environmental goods. The agreement has been a success for all three nations. It has led to a significant increase in trade between the three nations and has led to a significant increase in economic growth in all three nations.
