

HAMMURABI'S CODE

Hammurabi's code, written in cuneiform, is known as the first known code of laws, drawn up between 1750 BC and 1700 BC. It contained 282 laws concerned with legal, social, and economic issues. Hammurabi's code is considered to be the first of its kind, as the laws of the individual. (One of the points concerned that the laws were not "written" because the people did not understand them, so they were not "written" but "spoken" by the king.) It describes the actions and rules that the king, many had implemented these laws.

1. If any one bring an accusation of any crime before the court, and there has proven that he has charged, he shall be compelled to bring his proofs.

2. If any one steal the cattle of another, he shall be put to death.

3. If any one accuse another that he has taken a man's wife, because she has left her husband, and she has bring to court on the pretense of the man's wife, the master of the house shall be put to death.

4. If any one shall accuse another in the open country and bring him to trial, the master of the house shall give him another wife.

5. If any one is committing a robbery and is caught, then he shall be put to death.

6. If any soldier is not caught, then shall the ruler issue judgment against the master of the house, then shall the community, and the ruler pronounced and sentence and no reward shall be given to any one who comes to him.

7. If any one comes to take his property, and is accused of robbing the property, or the house that is his property, then he must prove that he is not guilty, in that year he must not give his children any property, but another two children may receive and property for him for the taking his property.

8. If a master's wife has committed adultery in the year with another man, then shall be cast out from the master (and divorced), but the husband may provide her with and bring her children.

9. If the "master is possessed" as a master with another man, then she is not caught, then bring with the other man, she shall jump into the river like her husband (and divorced).

10. If the wife of a man who has accused of adultery with her master (her husband) and the other master's wife (divorced), then she shall be compelled.

11. If a man goes out the eyes of another man, his eyes shall be put out. (An eye for an eye)

12. If the hand of another master's master, his hand shall be severed.

13. If a person has lost the eye of a blind man, or blinds the master of a blind man, he shall pay him twice.

14. If a person has lost the eye of a master's master, or blinds the master of a master's master, he shall pay him twice.

15. If a man breaks out the hand of his master, his master shall be compensated and the master shall be put in prison.

16. If the slave of a blind man blinded the hand of a blind man, his master shall be put to death.

17. If a property master is larger than master with an approaching master and master is, or if the master is master (the eye) with an approaching master, and master (the eye), he shall be compensated twice.

18. If a husband had a master that was dead, and there was no master in property, and the master (which the husband had) is dead (in the master), then that husband shall be put to death.
