Ams Ocean Studies Investigation Manual Answer:

Future Earth Diana Dalbotten, Gillian Roehrig, Patrick Hamilton, 2014-06-23 Earth now is dominated by both biogeophysical and anthropogenic processes as represented in these two images from a simulation of aerosols. Dust red from the Sahara sweeps west across the Atlantic Ocean. Sea salt blue rises into the atmosphere from winds over the North Atlantic and from a tropical cyclone in the Indian Ocean. Organic and black carbon green from biomass burning is notable over the Amazon and Southeast Asia. Plumes of sulfate white from fossil fuel burning are particularly prominent over northeastern North America and East Asia. If present trends of dust emissions and fossil fuel burning continues in what we call the Anthropocene epoch then we could experience high atmospheric CO₂ levels leading to unusual warming rarely experienced in Earth's history. This book focuses on human influences on land, ocean and the atmosphere to determine if human activities are operating within or beyond the safe zones of our planet's biological, chemical and physical systems. Volume highlights include Assessment of civic understanding of Earth and its future, Understanding the role of undergraduate geoscience research and community driven research on the Anthropocene, Effective communication of science to a broader audience that would include the public, the K-12 science community or populations underrepresented in the sciences, Public outreach on climate education, geoscience alliance and scientific reasoning. Future Earth is a valuable practical guide for scientists from all disciplines including geoscientists, museum curators, science educators and public policy makers.

The flume channel is 17.3 m long by 0.6 m wide and can be filled to a maximum depth of 0.3 m. The water is circulated by a centrifugal pump and is temperature controlled to 0.5 C over a range of about 4-30 C. Made of fiberglass, glass, plastics and high grade stainless steel all surfaces of the flume that come into contact with the water are noncorrosive and nontoxic to organisms. The flume is equipped with a computer controlled two axis laser Doppler velocimeter (LDV) for detailed, accurate and precise measurements of flow characteristics anywhere along the flume channel. In addition to detailed descriptions and illustrations of all components of the flume this report provides instructions for use of the flume and associated instrumentation. In Part II flume flow characteristics measured with the LDV are illustrated and evaluated relative to theoretical and empirical expectations for open channel flows.
