

America's Vision: Ch. 3 Guided Reading

Section 3.1

Q. How did the Puritan life that shaped New England vary politically and socially from the New England Colonies established in the 1600s? How did Puritanism, Puritan society, and Puritan political organization differ from the religious communities that other New Englanders established, such as Quakers, Baptists, and Anglicans? These communities often had different beliefs, practices, and/or goals, yet they also had similar political, economic, and social structures. Explain how these three groups of New England colonists differed in their Puritan political beliefs, their economic practices, and their political structures. How did Puritan political beliefs and economic practices differ from those of Quakers, Baptists, and Anglicans? How did Puritan political beliefs, economic practices, and social structures differ from those of New England colonists who did not practice Puritanism?
