

IN CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one People to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a case, dictates that慎重 should be exercised; and that no step should be undertaken which is fraught with the danger of exposing our Posterity to greater calamities than those from which we are now endeavouring to free them. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce us to absolute Tyranny, it is our duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for our future Security. — Such has been the patient Sufferance of these Colonies, that they have now to make a bold and manly Declaration of Independence, that they are free States, and that they will maintain that Freedom with Valour and Sacrifice.

That the United Colonies by these Declarations, are united into one People, one State, one Sovereignty, and that as such they are entitled to send Representatives to Congress, to whom they have sent John Adams, Samuel Adams, James Otis, and others, to be associated with the Representatives of the other Colonies, who have taken the Oath of Fidelity, and who have declared their unanimous Consent to the Declaration of Independence.
