G. Edmonds,1975 Traces the history of Ethiopia from Biblical times to the present Ethiopia's Access to the Sea Franz Amadeus Dombrowski,1985 Ethiopia Ben Parker,1995 Each book in Oxfam's Country Profiles series describes the social political historical environmental and economic context of Oxfam's work in one particular country The books focus on the real lives of ordinary people and the major development issues that face them and are illustrated with photographs maps and diagrams Ethiopia in Transit Pietro Toggia,Abebe Zegeye,2013-10-18 The writings in this edition explore historical and contemporary issues in Ethiopia as the country underwent change and celebrated its new millennium. However, despite the recognizance of socio economic and political changes, Ethiopia still faces enduring problems and challenges to its stability and continuity. The political past haunts the country while it is facing the future with optimism and hope. The contributors in this edition examine historical and contemporaneous issues with different lenses; they investigate the multiplicity and complexity of the contradictions that define traditional and modern Ethiopia. The contributions highlight the significance of the instability, dislocation, conflict, and transformation inherent in any society. None of these writings, however, celebrate the forces that create the conflict; they are cautious not to glorify the present and romanticize the past. On the contrary, they seek to contextualize the challenges which the country faces with a view to open a dialogue not exclusively among Ethiopians but with scholars and social activists in the rest of Africa as well as the international community. The contributions cover and examine such important topics as historiography, political power and legitimacy, ideology and radical views, knowledge transmission and modernity, emigration and the Ethiopian Diaspora, ethnic and linguistic identity, patriarchy and feminist discourses in a traditional society, public policies and economic development, traditional and modern art and culture, and neo liberalism and globalization. This book was published as a special issue of African Identities: Ethiopia, the Politics of Famine (James Finn, 1990). War, famine, pestilence, and doctrinaire Marxist-Leninist dictatorship: these are the four horsemen of modern Ethiopia's particular apocalypse. They have combined with one another into a brew more poisonous even than the sum of its parts. Just how a people of such ancient culture and proud history and of such intelligence and sophistication could have come to this sad fate requires some words of explanation. That the name Ethiopia has over the past two decades become synonymous with starvation, civil war, and man's massive inhumanity to his fellow man is a source of deep pain to Ethiopians everywhere—those in the growing Ethiopian diaspora as much as to those who remain within Ethiopia's borders—and of bewilderment and puzzlement to others. There must be a reason for it. This volume, the result of a recent symposium that included two very distinguished former high officials of the Mengistu regime, provides much of the answer.
