Netherlands Yearbook of International Law 2016 Martin Kuijer, Wouter Werner, 2017-12-13 International law holds a paradoxical position with territory Most rules of international law are traditionally based on the notion of State territory and territoriality still significantly shapes our contemporary legal system At the same time new developments have challenged territory as the main organising principle in international relations Three trends in particular have affected the role of territoriality in international law the move towards functional regimes the rise of cosmopolitan projects claiming to transgress state boundaries and the development of technologies resulting in the need to address intangible non territorial phenomena Yet notwithstanding some profound changes it remains impossible to think of international law without a territorial locus If international law is undergoing changes this implies a reconfiguration of territory but not a move beyond it The Netherlands Yearbook of International Law was first published in 1970 It offers a forum for the publication of scholarly articles of a conceptual nature in a varying thematic area of public international law Industrial Development Report 2013 United Nations,2014-03-15 This Report demonstrates that a more sustainable energy future is within our reach and that industrial energy efficiency is key It shows how industrial energy efficiency can make a difference by providing a detailed comprehensive global assessment of potentials technologies economic benefits as well as cost and barriers to be removed It provides an overview of the policy instruments most useful for developing economies This innovative work also reminds us that we must act now if we are to unlock the potential of current and emerging energy efficiency technologies The opportunities are significant by reducing energy inputs per unit of output we will benefit from improvements in standards of living while protecting the environment The Illustrated London News ,1884 The British Almanac of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge for the Year... ,1881
