Mapping Human Sensory-Motor Skills for Manipulation onto the Design and Control of Robots Matteo Bianchi,Gionata Salvietti,2019-03-25 Humans are endowed with extraordinary sensory motor capabilities that enable a successful interaction with and exploration of the environment as is the case of human manipulation Understanding and modeling these capabilities represents an important topic not only for neuroscience but also for robotics in a mutual inspiration both to inform the design and control of artificial systems and at the same time to increase knowledge on the biological side Within this context synergies i e goal directed actions that constrain multi DOFs of the human body and can be defined at the kinematic muscular neural level have gained increasing attention as a general simplified approach to shape the development of simple and effective artificial devices The execution of such purposeful sensory motor primitives on the biological side leverages on the interplay of the sensory motor control at central and peripheral level and the interaction of the human body with the external world This interaction is particularly important considering the new concept of robotic soft manipulation i e soft adaptable yet robust robotic hands that can deform with the external environment to multiply their grasping and manipulation capabilities Under this regard a preeminent role is reserved to touch being that skin isour primary organ to shape our knowledge of the external world and hence to modify it in interaction with the efferent parts This Research Topic reports results on the mutual inspiration between neuroscience and robotics and on how it is possible to translate neuroscientific findings on human manipulation into engineering guidelines for

Gamification: Concepts, Methodologies, Tools, and Applications Management Association, Information Resources, 2015-03-31 Serious games provide a unique opportunity to engage students more fully than traditional teaching approaches Understanding the best way to utilize games and play in an educational setting is imperative for effectual learning in the twenty first century Gamification Concepts Methodologies Tools and Applications investigates the use of games in education both inside and outside of the classroom and how this field once thought to be detrimental to student learning can be used to augment more formal models This four volume reference work is a premier source for educators administrators software designers and all stakeholders in all levels of education Physical Activity, Self-Regulation, and Executive Control Across the Lifespan Sean P. Mullen, Peter Hall, 2016-02-05 There is overwhelming evidence linking increased physical activity with positive changes in cognitive functioning and brain health Much of what we know about these interrelationships comes from aerobic exercise training studies with older adults and children This literature has paved the way for the neuroscientific investigation of mechanisms responsible for exercise induced cognitive and brain health enhancement a list that ranges from molecular changes to systemic changes in executive control and neural connectivity A new perspective has also emerged that aims to understand executive control processes that may underlie the regulation of health behavior In accordance with this view physical activity falls under the umbrella of health behaviors that require a substantial amount of executive control Executive control is a limited resource and the aging process depletes this resource People who regularly exercise are said to have higher self regulatory control planning goal shielding and impulse control than irregular exercisers The successful maintenance of physical activity participation in lieu of daily cognitive stressors likely reflects an adaptive resistance to control failures Indeed a handful of studies have shown the relationship between greater executive control and subsequently higher levels of physical activity However little is known about the neural correlates of physical activity adherence or sedentary behavior with the view that neurocognitive factors have an antecedent and reciprocal influence on these behaviors No research has focused on the brain networks responsible for the self regulation of physical activity which likely overlaps with structures and functions playing critical roles in the regulation of other health behaviors Interdisciplinary investigations are needed to explain the extent to which physical activity self regulation and self regulatory failure is dependent upon or under the influence of executive control processes and brain networks Understanding the degree to which self regulatory resources may be enhanced restored and trained will have enormous implications for basic science and applied fields It is also of great import to understand whether or not physical activity self regulation is a domain specific behavior associated with specific brain networks or to determine the extent to which regulatory network sharing occurs The aim of this Frontiers Research Topic is to curate contributions from researchers in social and cognitive neurosciences and related fields whose work involves the study of physical activity behavior self regulation and executive control For this Research Topic we therefore solicit reviews original research articles and opinion papers which draw theoretical or empirical connections related to sustained physical activity behavior self regulatory strategies cognitive performance and brain structure and function While focusing on work in the neurosciences this Research Topic also welcomes contributions in the form of behavioral studies psychophysiological investigations and methodological innovations This Frontiers Research Topic will carve out new directions for the fields of exercise cognitive and social neurosciences We hope you will consider submitting your work EMBEC & NBC 2017 Hannu Eskola,Outi Väisänen,Jari Viik,Jari Hyttinen,2017-06-12 This volume presents the proceedings of the joint conference of the European Medical and Biological Engineering Conference EMBEC and the Nordic Baltic Conference on Biomedical Engineering and Medical Physics NBC held in Tampere Finland in June 2017 The proceedings present all traditional biomedical engineering areas but also highlight new emerging fields such as tissue engineering bioinformatics biosensing neurotechnology additive manufacturing technologies for medicine and biology and bioimaging to name a few Moreover it emphasizes the role of education translational research and commercialization QST. ,1954 Synopsis of Sleep Medicine S.
