Architecture After Modernism:

Architecture After Modernism Diane Yvonne Ghirardo, 1996 Since the Modern Movement began to be challenged in the late 1960s architecture has followed a number of widely divergent paths In this thoughtful and eloquent book Diane Ghirardo examines the architectural world of the last quarter century and its theories in the crucial context of social and political issues Within a survey of a broad range of buildings she focuses on specific megaprojects as paradigms for discussion In the realm of public space she argues the key questions are raised by the Disney empire and its amusement parks in domestic space by the IBA in Berlin with projects ranging from new structures to rehabilitation and residents self build When it comes to reconfiguring the urban sphere the megaproject is London's Docklands the most ambitious and politically sensitive development in postwar Britain Her text ranges world wide and she considers the work of lesser known designers and women architects as well as famous international stars

Automatic Architecture Sean Keller, 2018-02-12 In the 1960s and 70s architects influenced by recent developments in computing and the rise of structuralist and poststructuralist thinking began to radically rethink how architecture could be created Though various new approaches gained favor they had one thing in common they advocated moving away from the traditional reliance on an individual architect's knowledge and instincts and toward the use of external tools and processes that were considered objective logical or natural Automatic architecture was born The quixotic attempts to formulate such design processes extended modernist principles and tried to draw architecture closer to mathematics and the sciences By focusing on design methods and by examining evidence at a range of scales from institutions to individual buildings Automatic Architecture offers an alternative to narratives of this period that have presented postmodernism as a question of style as the methods and techniques traced here have been more deeply consequential than the many stylistic shifts of the past half century Sean Keller closes the book with an analysis of the contemporary condition suggesting future paths for architectural practice that work through but also beyond the merely automatic

Toward a Modern Architecture After Modernism Robert A. M. Stern, 1981

A World History of Architecture Marian Moffett, Michael W. Fazio, Lawrence Wodehouse, 2003 The Roman architect and engineer Vitruvius declared firmitas utilitas and venustas firmness commodity and delight to be the three essential attributes of architecture. These qualities are brilliantly explored in this book which uniquely comprises both a detailed survey of Western architecture including Pre-Columbian America and an introduction to architecture from the Middle East, India, Russia, China, and Japan. The text encourages readers to examine closely the pragmatic, innovative, and aesthetic attributes of buildings and to imagine how these would have been praised or criticized by contemporary observers. Artistic, economic, environmental, political, social, and technological contexts are discussed so as to determine the extent to which buildings met the needs of clients, society at large, and future generations. Avery Index to Architectural Periodicals, 2d Ed., Rev. and Enl. Avery Library, 1996

Architectures Andrew Ballantyne, 2008-04-15

Architectures Modernism and After surveys the history of the building from the advent of industrialization to the cultural imperatives of the present moment. Brings together international art and architectural historians to consider a range of topics that have influenced the shape, profile, and aesthetics of the built environment. Presents crucial moments in the history of the field when the architecture of the past is made to respond to new and changing cultural circumstances. Provides a view of architectural history as a part of a continuing dialogue between aesthetic criteria and social and cultural imperatives. Part of the New Interventions in Art History Series which is published in conjunction with the Association of Art Historians.
