

Q4. Are you surprised by this source? Explain your answer using source and your knowledge. [7 marks]

This source is surprising because it was written by someone in a position of authority. It states that the League handled international politics, even if it did not have the authority to enforce its decisions.

Q1. What is the message of the cartoon? [3 marks]

The main message of the cartoon is that the League of Nations was ineffective in maintaining peace. It shows a man in a suit, representing the League, being overwhelmed by a large crowd of people, symbolizing the chaos and conflict of the world.

Q5. How far do these sources provide convincing evidence that the League of Nations was an effective peacekeeping organisation between 1920 and 1936? Use the sources to explain your answer. [9 marks]

Some sources provide convincing evidence that the League of Nations was an effective peacekeeping organisation. Source C acknowledges the League's role in maintaining peace, while Source D highlights its utility in handling international politics. Both sources acknowledge that the League contributed to peace, even if it did not have the authority to enforce its decisions.

Q2. Why was this source produced in Britain at this time? [3 marks]

The purpose of this cartoon is to satirise the ineffectiveness of the League of Nations in addressing Japanese aggression during the Manchurian Crisis of 1931-33. It aims to highlight the League's failure to act decisively and to evoke frustration or ridicule from its audience, which would primarily have been British readers in 1933. In the cartoon, the League is depicted as a small, timid figure, being trampled on by Japan with muddy boots. This interaction symbolises Japan's disregard for the League's authority as well as the League's powerlessness and the subsequent humiliation that comes from its failure to act.
