Future Spacecraft Propulsion Systems and Integration

Paul A. Czysz, Claudio Bruno, Bernd Chudoba, 2017-08-30 The updated and expanded third edition of this book focuses on the multi disciplinary coupling between flight vehicle hardware alternatives and enabling propulsion systems. It discusses how to match near term and far term aerospace vehicles to missions and provides a comprehensive overview of the subject directly contributing to the next generation space infrastructure from space tourism to space exploration. This holistic treatment defines a mission portfolio addressing near term to long term space transportation needs covering sub orbital orbital and escape flight profiles. In this context a vehicle configuration classification is introduced covering alternatives starting from the dawn of space access. A best practice parametric sizing approach is introduced to correctly design the flight vehicle for the mission. This technique balances required mission with the available vehicle solution space and is an essential capability sought after by technology forecasters and strategic planners alike.

Events such as the 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami and the 2011 Tohoku earthquake highlighted the vulnerability of urban cities to catastrophic earthquakes. Accurate assessment of earthquake related hazards both primary and secondary is essential to mitigate and control disaster risk exposure effectively. To date various approaches and tools have been developed in different disciplines. However they are fragmented over a number of research disciplines and underlying assumptions are often inconsistent. Our society and infrastructure are subjected to multiple types of cascading earthquake hazards therefore integrated hazard assessment and risk management strategy is needed for mitigating potential consequences due to multi hazards. Moreover uncertainty modeling and its impact on hazard prediction and anticipated consequences are essential parts of probabilistic earthquake
