20change Climate Intergovernmental Panel Report:

Climate Change, Forced Migration, and International Law Jane McAdam, 2012-02-23 Displacement caused by climate change is an area of growing concern. With current rises in sea levels and changes to the global climate it is an issue of fundamental importance to the future of many parts of the world. This book critically examines whether States have obligations to protect people displaced by climate change under international refugee law, international human rights law and the international law on statelessness. Drawing on field work undertaken in Bangladesh, India and the Pacific island States of Kiribati and Tuvalu it evaluates whether the phenomenon of climate change induced displacement is an empirically sound category for academic inquiry. It does so by examining the reasons why people move or choose not to move the extent to which climate change as opposed to underlying socio economic factors provides a trigger for such movement and whether traditional international responses such as the conclusion of new treaties and the creation of new institutions are appropriate solutions in this context. In this way the book queries whether flight from habitat destruction should be viewed as another facet of traditional international protection or as a new challenge requiring more creative legal and policy responses law and the international law on statelessness. Regreening the Built Environment Michael A. Richards, 2024-09-18 Now in its second volume, Regreening the Built Environment provides an overview of physical and social environmental challenges that the planet is facing and presents solutions that restore ecological processes, reclaim open space, foster social equity and facilitate a green economy. Healing the planet requires a combination of strategies networked across multiple scales of development including buildings, sites, communities and regions. Case studies from a range of locations in the United States, Denmark, Vietnam, Germany, South Korea, Switzerland, France and the United Kingdom, among others, demonstrate how existing gray infrastructure can be retrofitted with green infrastructure and low impact development techniques. From this, the author shows how a building can be designed that creates greenspace or generates energy, likewise a roadway can be a parkway, an alley can be a wildlife corridor and a parking surface can be a garden. This new edition also includes case studies that have successfully reconnected communities that were fragmented by unjust planning practices and irresponsible patterns of development resilient design solutions in response to natural disasters passive design strategies that can make interior spaces more efficient and healthier and expanded discussions on capturing carbon renewable energy agriculture waste public transit and adaptive reuse including innovative ideas on how to reimagine the shopping mall in the era of e commerce The strategies presented in this book will stimulate discussions within the design profession and will be of great interest to students and practitioners of environmental studies architecture landscape architecture and urban design
