Multi-omic Data Integration Paolo Tieri, Christine Nardini, Jennifer Elizabeth Dent, 2015-09-17 Stable predictive biomarkers and interpretable disease signatures are seen as a significant step towards personalized medicine In this perspective integration of multi omic data coming from genomics transcriptomics glycomics proteomics metabolomics is a powerful strategy to reconstruct and analyse complex multi dimensional interactions enabling deeper mechanistic and medical insight At the same time there is a rising concern that much of such different omic data although often publicly and freely available lie in databases and repositories underutilised or not used at all Issues coming from lack of standardisation and shared biological identities are also well known From these considerations a novel pressing request arises from the life sciences to design methodologies and approaches that allow for these data to be interpreted as a whole i e as intertwined molecular signatures containing genes proteins mRNAs and miRNAs able to capture inter layers connections and complexity Papers discuss data integration approaches and methods of several types and extents their application in understanding the pathogenesis of specific diseases or in identifying candidate biomarkers to exploit the full benefit of multi omic datasets and their intrinsic information content Topics of interest include but are not limited to Methods for the integration of layered data including but not limited to genomics transcriptomics glycomics proteomics metabolomics Application of multi omic data integration approaches for diagnostic biomarker discovery in any field of the life sciences Innovative approaches for the analysis and the visualization of multi omic datasets Methods and applications for systematic measurements from single undivided samples comprising genomic transcriptomic proteomic metabolomic measurements among others Multi scale approaches for integrated dynamic modelling and simulation Implementation of applications computational resources and repositories devoted to data integration including but not limited to data warehousing database federation semantic integration service oriented and or wiki integration Issues related to the definition and implementation of standards shared identities and semantics with particular focus on the integration problem Research papers reviews and short communications on all topics related to the above issues were welcomed

White Paper on Science and Technology, 2015 A Living History of Immunology Kendall Arthur Smith, 2015-11-04 In the highly competitive world of biomedical science often the rush to publish and to be recognized as first with a new discovery concept or method is lost in the hurly burly of the moment as the maddening crowd moves on to the next new thing One of the great things about immunology today is that it has only become mature as a science within the last half century and especially within the past 35 years as a consequence of the revolution of molecular immunology which has taken place only since 1980 Consequently most of those who have contributed to our new understanding of how the immune system functions are still alive and well and still contributing Thus A Living History of Immunology collates many stories from the investigators who actually performed the experiments that have established the frontiers of immunology Accordingly this volume combats revisionist science by those who want to alter history by telling the stories a different way than actually happened In this regard one of the good things about science vs other disciplines is that we have the written record of what was done when it was done and by whom Even so we do not have the complete story or narrative of how and why experiments were done and what made the differences that led to success This volume captures and chronicles some of these stories from the past fifty years in immunology Male Suicide and Masculinity in 19th-century Britain Lyndsay Galpin, 2022-04-07 This book shows how interpretations of suicidal motives were guided by gendered expectations of behaviour and that these expectations were constructed to create meaning and understanding for family friends and witnesses Providing an insight into how people of this era understood suicidal behaviour and motives it challenges the assertion that suicide was seen as a distinctly feminine act and that men who took their own lives were feminized as a result. Instead it shows that masculinity was understood in a more nuanced way than gender binaries allow and that a man's masculinity was measured against other men. Focusing on four common narrative types: the love suicide, the unemployed suicide, the suicide of the fraudster or speculator, and the suicide of the dishonoured soldier, it provides historical context to modern discussions about the crisis of masculinity and rising male suicide rates. It reveals that narratives around male suicides are not so different today as they were then and that our modern model of masculinity can be traced back to the 19th century. □□□□□□□□□□, 2013 The Serials Directory, 1986 Liverpool and Manchester Photographic Journal William Crookes, T.A.
