Lipid Signalling in Plant Development and Responses to

Environmental Stresses Eric Ruelland,Olga Valentova,2016-08-09 In response to environmental stresses or during development plant cells will produce lipids that will act as intracellular or intercellular mediators Glycerophospholipid and or sphingolipid second messengers resulting from the action of lipid metabolizing enzymes e g lipid kinases or lipases are commonly found within cells The importance of such mediating lipids in plants has become increasingly apparent Responses to biotic and abiotic stresses and to plant hormones all appear to involve and require lipid signals Likewise developmental processes in particular polarized growth seem also to involve signalling lipids Amongst these lipids phosphatidic acid PA has received the most attention It can be produced by phospholipases D but also by diacylglycerol kinases coupled to phospholipases C Proteins that bind phosphatidic acid and for which the activity is altered upon binding have been identified Furthermore other lipids are also important in signalling processes PA can be phosphorylated into diacylglycerol pyrophosphate and plants are one of the first biological models where the production of this lipid has been reported and its implication in signal transduction have been demonstrated PA can also be deacylated into lyso phosphatidic acid The phosphorylated phosphatidylinositols i e the phosphoinositides can act as substrate of phospholipases C but are also mediating lipids per se since proteins that bind them have been identified Other important lipid mediators belong to the sphingolipid family such the phosphorylated phytosphingosine or long chain bases Many questions remain unanswered concerning lipid signalling in plants Understanding and discussing current knowledge on these mechanisms will provide insights into plant mechanisms in response to constraints either developmental or environmental War Mariane C. Ferme,2018-08-10 Out of War draws on Mariane C Ferme s three decades of ethnographic engagements to examine the physical and psychological aftereffects of the harms of Sierra Leone s civil war Ferme analyzes the relationship between violence trauma and the political imagination focusing on war times the different qualities of temporality arising from war She considers the persistence of precolonial and colonial figures of sovereignty re elaborated in the context of war and the circulation of rumors and neologisms that freeze in time collective anxieties linked to particular phases of the conflict or chronotopes Beyond the expected traumas of war Ferme explores the breaks in the intergenerational transmission of farming and hunting techniques and the lethal effects of remembering experienced traumas and forgetting local knowledge In the context of massive population displacements and humanitarian interventions this ethnography traces strategies of survival and material dwelling and the juridical creation of new figures of victimhood where colonial and postcolonial legacies are reinscribed in neoliberal projects of decentralization and individuation Parliamentary Debates (Hansard).
