Global Agriculture and the American Farmer Kimberly Ann Elliott, 2017-06-27 The United States is one of the world's largest producers and exporters of a range of agricultural commodities and the largest provider of foreign assistance so US policies have big effects on global food security and other global public goods linked to agriculture On the positive side of the ledger President Obama created the Feed the Future aid initiative to promote agricultural development in poorer countries as a tool to achieve the global goals of ending hunger and extreme poverty which are mostly rural But that generosity is undercut by US support for farmers that distorts global markets and ignores negative spillovers for the rest of the world In this book Elliott focuses on three policy areas that are particularly damaging for developing countries traditional agricultural subsidy and trade policies that support the incomes of American farmers at the expense of farmers elsewhere the biofuels mandate which in its current form increases market volatility while doing little if anything to mitigate climate change and weak regulation of antibiotic use in livestock which contributes to the global spread of drug resistant super bugs While noting that broad reforms are needed to fix these problems Elliott also identifies practical steps that US policymakers could take in the relatively short run to improve farm policies for American taxpayers and consumers as well as for the poor and vulnerable in developing countries

Botswana. Parliament. Special Select Committee of Inquiry into the Botswana Meat Commission and the Decline of the Botswana Beef Industry, 2013 White Paper on Science and Technology, 2014 Environmental Water Markets and Regulation Katherine Owens, 2016-11-18 River systems around the world are degraded and are being used unsustainably Meeting this challenge requires the development of flexible regimes that have the potential to meet essential consumptive needs while restoring environmental flows This book focuses on how water trading frameworks can be repurposed for environmental water recovery and aims to conceptualise the most appropriate role for law in supporting recovery through these frameworks The author presents a comprehensive study of the legal frameworks in four jurisdictions the States of Oregon and Colorado in the western United States the province of Alberta in Canada and the Murray Darling Basin in Australia Basin State of New South Wales A close comparative analysis of these four jurisdictions reveals a variety of distinctive regulatory arrangements and collaborations between public and private actors In all cases the law has been deployed to steer and coordinate these water governance activities The book argues that each regime is based on a particular regulatory strategy with different conceptions of the appropriate roles for and relationships between various actors and institutions Legal frameworks do not have the capacity to rationalise and provide an overarching and absolute solution to the complex environmental and governance issues that arise in the context of environmental water transactions Rather the role of law in this context needs to be reconceptualised within the paradigm of regulatory capitalism as establishing and maintaining the limits within which regulatory participants can operate innovate and collaborate
