Colonial Period: Government in Colonial America

Colonial Period: The period before 1776 and the creation of the United States of America. It was a period of varying government structures between colonies. However, they had some similarities that were very important for later American government.

1. Colonial Monarchs: King Philip controlled various colonies through royal governors and the colonies. King Charles I, King Charles II, and King James I controlled the New England colonies.

2. Colonial Charters: Colonies used charters to give additional powers to the government. These charters gave the colonies the right to regulate their economy and government more freely.

3. Other Colonies Were Given Limited Powers: Colonies in New France, New England, and New Netherland had limited powers. These colonies had less power than the English colonies.

4. New England Colonies: and other colonies like Pennsylvania, had colonies with limited powers. These colonies had less power than the English colonies because they were controlled by others and given them less rights to regulate during the New era.

5. New England Colonies and New Netherland: The government for the New England colonies were mostly influenced by their colonists.

6. Massachusetts: Massachusetts had unique government structures like the Boston Massacre, Boston Tea Party, and Boston Riots.

7. Virginia Colonies: Colonies like Virginia, Maryland, and Virginia had unique government structures like the Virginia Slave Code, the Virginia Slave Code, and the Virginia Slave Code.

8. Colonial Period: The period of time before 1776 and the creation of the United States of America. It was a period of varying government structures between colonies and the colonies had some similarities.

9. Colonial Period: The period of time before 1776 and the creation of the United States of America. It was a period of varying government structures between colonies and the colonies had some similarities.
