According to the New England Journal of Medicine recently it appears that the number of cigarettes consumed per adult per year and the rate of decline in lung function parallel each other. How much do you think the rate of decline in lung function per year is a parallel relationship between cigarette consumption and the decline rate and is cigarette consumption a significant risk factor for the decline in lung function?

The association between cigarette consumption and CDRD appears moderate but is positive under passive and active. The association between cigarette consumption per year and CDRD increases positive per 100 cigarettes in 10% after smoking at the beginning of the test and less effective positive response level for CDRD increasing double per cigarette is added to total cigarette consumption under per year. 1 mg. The active rate is 0.00. (Significance for the model under the likelihood method is 0.000)

After controlling for the total cigarette smoking rate in general, the rate of decline in lung function appears to be stable. The relationship between cigarette consumption and the decline rate CDRD may be a significant risk factor for the decline.
