

Argumentative Essays

The following outline is appropriate if you are presenting an objective or neutral position on the issue.

Argumentative Essay:

Point by Point

This organization works well if you would like to present 2 sides of an issue fairly and objectively without taking a side. Point by point works best if the individual points of argument oppose each other directly.

Introduction:

- Explain the importance of the issue
- Provide background information explaining why the issue is commonly debated
- Provide a thesis statement which recognizes the main perspectives of the opposing sides. (Do not present your opinion)

Body:

Paragraph 1:

- Present the first supporting point of one side
- Support the points with examples or research to illustrate their position
- Present the opposing or counter point to the above claim
- Support the points with examples or research to illustrate their position

Paragraph 2:

- Present the second supporting point of one side
- Support the points with examples or research to illustrate their position
- Present the opposing or counter point to the above claim
- Support the points with examples or research to illustrate their position

Paragraph 3:

- Present the third supporting point of one side
- Support the points with examples or research to illustrate their position
- Present the opposing or counter point to the above claim
- Support the points with examples or research to illustrate their position

(Continue in this way until you have exhausted your ability to present both sides of the issue)

Paragraph 4: (optional)

- If you have additional points to present that cannot be directly countered, you can provide them in the last few body paragraphs

Conclusion

- Rephrase your main point
- Summarize your main ideas in order to show how strong your position is over your opponent's
- Provide a final thought for the reader
