A Doll's House A Play Annotated:

A Doll's House : a Play Henrik Ibsen, 2021-06-13 A Doll's House is a three act play by Henrik Ibsen that premiered in 1879. Set in a Norwegian town, it tells the story of Nora Helmer and her husband Torvald. Amidst secrets and lies and threats to reputation, Nora comes to see her husband for what he really is and their marriage as something she no longer wants a part of. The play is significant for its critical attitude toward 19th century marriage norms and although it comes across as a feminist play, Ibsen denies that that was his intent. The play is based on the life of a friend of Ibsen's, Laura Kieler, whose married life had similarities of those of Nora and Torvald. Laura had signed an illegal loan to find a cure for her husband's illness. When he found out he had her committed to an insane asylum, it was at this point that Ibsen, shaken by what had happened to his friend, wrote A Doll's House. For her part, Laura went on to become a well-known author.

A Doll's House Henrik Ibsen, 2006 This Prestwick House Literary Touchstone Edition includes a glossary and reader's notes to help the modern reader contend with Ibsen's approach to complex human interactions and the relationship between the sexes. Norwegian-born Henrik Ibsen's classic play about the struggle between independence and security still resonates with readers and audience members today. Often hailed as an early feminist work, the story of Nora and Torvald rises above simple gender issues to ask the bigger question: To what extent have we sacrificed our selves for the sake of social customs and to protect what we think is love? Nora's struggle and ultimate realizations about her life invite all of us to examine our own lives and find the many ways we have made ourselves dolls and playthings in the hands of forces we believe to be beyond our control.

A Doll's House Henrik Ibsen, 2021-07-30 The Reception of the Play A Doll's House is a naturalistic problem play based on the social reality of the late nineteenth century European society. It deals with the problem of crisis of the traditional marriage based on domination of women by men and women's position as possession of man. In A Doll's House, modern drama found its typical form, but it was Nora and her rebellion which caused the play to become a universal sensation. It was soon translated into several European languages and it was staged in theatres as far flung as South America and Australia. It was explained and attacked in newspapers, periodicals, and books; it was condemned from pulpits and discussed by lawyers. What made people most angry was that Nora leaves her husband and children, and in several German theatres the final act was altered so that she chooses to stay. In order to prevent even worse falsification, Ibsen himself prepared a revised version to provide a happy ending. Later, he regretted this, saying that actually it was for the sake of the final scene that he had written the whole play. With its original ending, that is, with Nora's exit from her home, A Doll's House has received world-wide publicity and greater fame than any other play by Ibsen. It has revealed a strange power to stimulate an audience to discussion, and this in widely differing times and places. Henrik Ibsen is known as the father of modern realism in most of the eastern and western drama. Before Ibsen, all dramatists followed romantic convention. Ibsen, for the first time, introduced problem play. A Doll's House is a problem play or a thesis play like most of his other works. It presents the real problem of society to the audience and to the reader The problem Ibsen has presented in the drama is the position of woman in relation to her husband and her home The play shows that if a married woman depends upon her husband blindly the consequences may be disastrous The woman gradually reveals her existence and she wants to emancipate herself from the bondage of a conventional moralist The play explores deep into the theme marriage Ibsen favored Nora and he wanted to make his contemporary women aware of the situation The implied message of the drama is that women no longer are content to be treated as pets and skylarks protected sex objects and dependent dolls Through different activities and writings Ibsen was in favor of women s independence A theme which was recurrent in those days the play deals with a predicament in which a married woman finds herself on account of the excessive control which her husband exercises upon her The situation or the theme of the play was very appropriate for the 19th century Europe A woman was reduced in size by her conventional society In the drama the husband is reduced in size and new lesson was taught to the society She also defers him The woman is dedicated to seek her rights whereas the size of the duty to her family is reduced The main aim of this play was to establish the fact that a woman should be allowed to establish her identity and develop her own individual existence Nora was treated not like a human by her husband rather she is fooled by using child talk and an endearing expression He addresses her like a pet and he uses the word pet many times For him she is a little sky lark or a frisking squirrel All the household rules are laid down by him He suggests her not to be spendthrift he forbids her eating macaroons and he is against borrowing money It seems as if Nora has no desires and wishes By pointing at Nora s father s weaknesses and also those of Krogstad s he seems to be a strict moralist He had formed a dominant psychology on Nora therefore she trembles even to think of the forgery before him
