

1.7. One work by one author, when the author is cited more than once in a paragraph

Refer to the APA Manual, 2010, p 174 (section 6.11)

The rules for this are quite complex, mostly because there is one rule for citations in brackets (parenthetical) and other rules for citations that are part of the narrative.

‘Part of the narrative’ means that the reference is part of a sentence, and not in brackets.

Examples

If a citation is part of the narrative, it looks like ‘According to Jones (2013)..., or Jones (2013) states that....

If a citation is parenthetical, it looks like ‘(Jones, 2013)’.

Citations in brackets (parenthetical)

One rule, very straightforward.

The APA manual states that the year should be included in all citations that are in brackets.

“Do include the year in all parenthetical citations” (APA, 2010, p. 174)

This applies irrespective of the style (part of the narrative, or parenthetical) of the first citation.

Example from APA manual (2010, p. 174)

Among epidemiological samples, Kessler et al. (2003) found that early onset social anxiety disorder results in a more potent and severe course.The study also showed that there was a high rate of comorbidity with alcohol abuse or dependence and major depression (Kessler et al., 2003).

Citations that are part of the narrative

There are two rules for this style of citing. Not so simple.

If the first citation is part of the narrative, do not include the year in subsequent references that are in the narrative. APA states “you need not include the year in subsequent nonparenthetical [emphasis added] references....” (APA, 2010, p. 174). We asked for clarification of the meaning of ‘need not’, via the APAstyle blog, and they have informed us that it is correct to interpret the text ‘you need not’ to mean ‘do not’.

Example from APA manual (2010, p. 174)

Among epidemiological samples, Kessler et al. (2003) found that early onset social anxiety disorder results in a more potent and severe course. Kessler et al. also found....
