Respecting The Rights Of Animals Everywhere

The Abuse Must Stop Before It Is Too Late

The innocent animals of the world don't deserve to be abused.

Animals are like humans in so many ways and deserve the right to survive without the abuse and harm that is currently being inflicted on them daily. The debate for animal rights has been going on for many years and yet in many countries around the world, animals are still living in fear and we must stop this wrongdoing before it gets even worse. There are many forms of animal cruelty/abuse. From fur farms, to the consumption of dogs and cats in 3rd world countries, to the beating of seals with clubs for a sport in Northern Canada. We must all realize that what is occurring around the world is not right and must stop. Animals are apart of our world and everyday life and we must protect them as if we were protecting ourselves from the harm of others.

The first form of animal cruelty that is well known to many people is the mistreatment that takes place in homes with house hold pets and the mistreatment inflicted on livestock animals. These two are linked in the idea that animals are both being treated unfair and are forced to live in extremely unhealthy environments. In an abusing animal house hold, animals are often starved (given little to no food or water), given no attention and are often beaten severely causing unbearable pain and suffering. This is not okay and just because animals can not tell us to stop and are too helpless to do anything doesn't mean that it is right to mistreat them like this. According to many people, including one, Marcus Kelley, "ANIMALS HAVE FEELINGS TOO AND DESERVE THE RIGHT TO SURVIVE." This tells us that just like people, animals have feelings and can feel pain. People may disagree with this statement because they believe animals are just animals and because they don't function like we do and can't speak out against the actions we do then it makes it okay to inflict pain on them. However, in reality animals and people are animals are very similar despite the obvious differences.

Children and Animals Frank R. Ascione, 2005 Animal abuse has been an acknowledged problem for centuries but only within the past few decades has scientific research provided evidence that the maltreatment of animals often overlaps with violence toward people The variants of violence including bullying or assaults in a schoolyard child abuse in homes violence between adult intimate partners community hostility in our streets and neighborhoods and even the context of war are now the subject of concerted research efforts Very often the association of these forms of violence with cruelty to animals has been found The perpetrators of such inhumane treatment are often children and adolescents How common are these incidents What motivates human maltreatment of animals Are there cultural societal neighborhood and family contexts that contribute to cruelty to animals How early in a child's life does cruelty to animals emerge and are these incidents always a sign of future interpersonal violence Are there ways of preventing such cruelty Can we intervene effectively with children who already have a history of abuse and violence Children and Animals Exploring the Roots of Kindness and Cruelty presents the current scientific and professional wisdom about the relation between the maltreatment of animals and interpersonal violence directed toward other human beings However the author Frank R Ascione a noted expert in these areas writes in a style and presents the findings in a language that will be understandable to parents teachers counselors clergy animal welfare professionals foster parents mental health professionals youth workers law enforcement professionals and anyone else whose work or interest crosses into the lives of children and adolescents Proceedings and Papers, 1963 Child Abuse, Domestic Violence, and Animal Abuse Frank R.
