Reacting Viscous-shock-layer Solutions with Multicomponent Diffusion and Mass Injection James N. Moss, 1974

This study presents numerical solutions of the viscous shock layer equations where the chemistry is treated as being either frozen equilibrium or nonequilibrium. Also the effects of the diffusion model, surface catalysis and mass injection on surface transport and flow parameters are considered. The flow is treated as a mixture of five inert and thermally perfect species. The viscous shock layer equations are solved by using an implicit difference scheme. All calculations are for hyperboloids with included angles of 20 and 45°. The flight conditions are those for various altitudes and velocities in the Earth's atmosphere. Data are presented to show the effects of the chemical models, diffusion models, surface catalysis and mass injection of air on heat transfer, skin friction, shock standoff distance, wall pressure distribution and tangential velocity, temperature and species profiles. The results show that an equilibrium analysis can substantially overpredict the heat transfer rates for flow conditions experienced by earth orbital entry vehicles. Moreover, at such conditions, surface catalysis significantly influences heat transfer and flow field properties. If a binary rather than a multicomponent diffusion model is assumed negligible errors in most flow properties result Quantitative results are presented that show the effect of mass injection on flow properties within and downstream of the injection region AQA GCSE Physics for Combined Science: Trilogy Jim Breithaupt,2020-07-16 Specifically tailored for the current 2016 AQA GCSE Science 9 1 specifications this book supports students on their journey from Key Stage 3 and through to success at GCSE It includes support for the maths and practical requirements Silos Marcel L.
