a. Can a person at point X see a person at point Y?

No, because the person at point X is, a lower in elevation than a hole in front of her/her. Same applies to person point y. This are two mountains and a hill blocking them from seeing each other.

b. Can a person at point Y see a person at point D?

No, because the person on point Y is lower in elevation than point D and also in front of point y a ridge is blocking the view in front of person y.

c. Can a person at point D see a person at point X?

Yes, because the person on point D has higher elevation than person on point X and the person on point D has nothing blocking the view of him.

d. Can a person at point C see a person at point Y?

No, the person on point c at the elevation of 200 has a mountain with a plateau in front of her thus he could see and will have a blocked view since person at point y is below the whole plateau.
