1. The first step in solving a system of linear equations is to write the equations in slope-intercept form. This means that each equation should be written in the form $y = mx + b$, where m is the slope and b is the y-intercept. Once the equations are in slope-intercept form, you can use the substitution method to solve the system. This involves substituting the expression for y from one equation into the other equation, and then solving for x . Once you have found the value of x , you can substitute it back into one of the original equations to find the value of y .

2. The second step in solving a system of linear equations is to graph the equations. This involves plotting the lines on a coordinate plane. The x-axis and y-axis are labeled, and the origin is marked with the letter O. The equations are plotted as lines, and the solution to the system is the point where the lines intersect.
