MCSE Study Guide Joe Casad, 1996 Get it done well and get it done fast are twin apparently opposing demands Data architects are increasingly expected to deliver quality data models in challenging timeframes and agile developers are increasingly expected to ensure that their solutions can be easily integrated with the data assets of the overall organization If you need to deliver quality solutions despite exacting schedules The Nimble Elephant will help by describing proven techniques that leverage the libraries of published data model patterns to rapidly assemble extensible and robust designs The three sections in the book provide guidelines for applying the lessons to your own situation so that you can apply the techniques and patterns immediately to your current assignments The first section Foundations for Data Agility addresses some perceived aspects of friction between data and agile practitioners As a starting point for resolving the differences pattern levels of granularity are classified and their interdependencies exposed A context of various types of models is established e g conceptual logical physical and industry enterprise project and you will learn how to customize patterns within specific model types The second section Steps Towards Data Agility shares guidelines on generalizing and specializing with cautions on the dangers of going too far Creativity in using patterns beyond their intended purpose is encouraged The short term You Ain t Gonna Need It YAGNI philosophy of agile practitioners and the longer term strategic perspectives of architects are compared and evaluated Consideration is given to the potential of enterprise views contributing to project specific models Other topics include industry models iterative modeling creation of patterns when none exist and patterns for rules in data The section ends with a perspective on the modeler s possible role in agile projects followed by a case study The final section A Bridge to the Land of Object Orientation provides a pathway for re skilling traditional data modelers who want to expand their options by actively engaging with the ranks of object oriented developers

Recent Advances in the Design of Structures with Passive Energy Dissipation Systems Giuseppe Ricciardi,Dario De Domenico,Ruifu Zhang,2020-06-23 Passive vibration control plays a crucial role in structural engineering Common solutions include seismic isolation and damping systems with various kinds of devices such as viscous viscoelastic hysteretic and friction dampers These strategies have been widely utilized in engineering practice and their efficacy has been demonstrated in mitigating damage and preventing the collapse of buildings bridges and industrial facilities However there is a need for more sophisticated analytical and numerical tools to design structures equipped with optimally configured devices On the other hand the family of devices and dissipative elements used for structural protection keeps evolving because of growing performance demands and new progress achieved in materials science and mechanical engineering This Special Issue collects 13 contributions related to the development and application of passive vibration control strategies for structures covering both traditional and innovative devices In particular the contributions concern experimental and theoretical investigations of high efficiency dampers and isolation bearings optimization of conventional and innovative energy dissipation devices performance based and probability based design of damped structures application of nonlinear dynamics random vibration theory and modern control theory to the design of structures with passive energy dissipation systems and critical discussion of implemented isolation damping technologies in significant or emblematic engineering projects     Optimizing the Delivery of Multiple Ecosystem Goods and Services in Agricultural Systems Maria A. Tsiafouli, Evangelia G. Drakou, Alberto Orgiazzi, Katarina Hedlund, Karl Ritz, 2017-10-18 Agricultural land is subjected to a variety of societal pressures as demands for food animal feed and biomass production increase with an added requirement to simultaneously maintain natural areas and mitigate climatic and environmental impacts The biotic elements of agricultural systems interact with the abiotic environment to generate a number of ecosystem functions that offer services benefiting humans across many scales of time and space The intensification of agriculture generally reduces biodiversity including that within soil and impacts negatively upon a number of regulating and supporting ecosystem services There is a global need toward achieving sustainable agricultural systems as also highlighted in the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals There is hence a need for management regimes that enhance both agricultural production and the associated provision of multiple ecosystem services The articles of this Research Topic enhance our knowledge of how management practices applied to agricultural systems affect the delivery of multiple ecosystem services and how trade offs between provisioning regulating and supporting services can be handled both above and below ground They also show the diversity of topics that need to be considered within the framework of ecosystem services delivered by agricultural systems from knowledge on basic concepts and newly proposed frameworks to a focus on specific ecosystem types such as grasslands and high nature value farmlands pollinator habitats and soil habitats This diversity of topics indicates the need for broader scope research integrated with targeted scientific research to promote sustainable agricultural practices and to ensure food security     Index and Directory of U.S. Industry Standards ,1987     Journal of Apicultural Research ,2006     Publications, Programs & Services American Petroleum Institute,2005     Reference
