Navigating Complexity in Postgraduate/Graduate Health Professions Education:

Innovative Pedagogical Approaches and Assessment Strategies Shaista S. Guraya, Nabil Zary, Preman

Rajalingam, 2025-12-19 In the realm of adult learning graduate and postgraduate education teaching and assessment strategies are usually an extension of undergraduate strategies without contextualizing the different needs of this learner community Unlike undergraduate learners graduate and postgraduate learners are a population of different skills and attributes carrying strong academic professional and social personal identities To strengthen this relationship of personal and professional self adult learner goes through the functional enculturation critical thinking and emancipation stages While believing in relevance to their practice they capitalize on their prior knowledge and bring complexity to the learning context using their varied experiences and needs Despite years of research into andragogy and interesting findings on the differences in learning e.g. attention working memory executive function etc in an ageing adult brain it is harder to make any claim about dramatically different teaching and learning needs of adult learners Additionally there is an inadequacy of research tapping into the effectiveness of collaborative flexible self directed and reflective learning and formative competency based assessment in this learner population To strengthen healthcare systems we aim to curate a research collection of articles considering teaching and assessment strategies for adult learners to create a holistic and comprehensive snapshot of the preferences and needs of adults in the context of postgraduate health professions education This article collection lead will focus on the studies exploring innovative learning and assessment strategies within the context of graduate and postgraduate health professions education This area will also include the integration of AI and competency based education to address the intricacies associated with graduate and postgraduate degrees particularly in nursing medicine allied health physiotherapy dental and interdisciplinary teams With a specific emphasis on adult learners the contributions should seek to identify effective pedagogical approaches tailored to the unique learner characteristics and challenges posed by diverse healthcare disciplines We also aim to consider the limited availability of educational collections in this domain and provide insights that will be beneficial for the potential audience including educators program developers and practitioners Manuscript submissions must focus on graduate and postgraduate health professions education and could consider such themes as for example but not limited to Investigation of the needs and preferences of adult graduate and postgraduate learners as they differ from undergraduates Novel teaching and assessment strategies for adult learners or assessment of the effectiveness of current strategies Applications of AI and other new technologies in graduate and postgraduate education Differences in effective pedagogical approaches across graduate and postgraduate education in diverse healthcare disciplines Exploration of educational strategies that align with the age related changes in neurophysiological and cognitive profiles of adults The educational strategies may include adaptive technologies cognitive training interventions or teaching and learning approaches We welcome original research systematic reviews policy and practice reviews hypothesis and theory perspectives clinical trials community case studies curriculum instruction and

Culture History and Convergent Evolution Huw S. Groucutt, 2020-07-23 This volume brings together diverse contributions from leading archaeologists and paleoanthropologists covering various spatial and temporal periods to distinguish convergent evolution from cultural transmission in order to see if we can discover ancient human populations With a focus on lithic technology the book analyzes ancient materials and cultures to systematically explore the theoretical and physical aspects of culture convergence and populations in human evolution and prehistory The book will be of interest to academics students and researchers in archaeology paleoanthropology genetics and paleontology The book begins by addressing early prehistory discussing the convergent evolution of behaviors and the diverse ecological conditions driving the success of different evolutionary paths Chapters discuss these topics and technology in the context of the Lower Paleolithic Earlier Stone age and Middle Paleolithic Middle Stone Age The book then moves towards a focus on the prehistory of our species over the last 40 000 years Topics covered include the human evolutionary and dispersal consequences of the Middle Upper Paleolithic Transition in Western Eurasia Readers will also learn about the cultural convergences and divergences that occurred during the Terminal Pleistocene and Holocene such as the budding of human societies in the Americas The book concludes by integrating these various perspectives and theories and explores different methods of analysis to link technological developments and cultural convergence

Human Security and Sustainable Development in East Africa Jeremiah O. Asaka, Alice A. Oluoko-Odingo, 2022-05-23 This book investigates contemporary human security issues in East Africa setting forth policy recommendations and a research agenda for future studies Human security takes a people centered rather than state centered approach to security issues focusing on whether people feel safe free from fear want and indignity This book investigates human security in East Africa encompassing issues as diverse as migration housing climate change displacement food security aflatoxins land rights and peace and conflict resolution In particular the book showcases innovative original research from African scholars based on the continent and abroad and together the contributors provide policy recommendations and set forth a human security research agenda for East Africa which encompasses Kenya Uganda Tanzania Somalia Rwanda Burundi South Sudan Sudan Ethiopia Eritrea and Djibouti As well as being useful for policy makers and practitioners this book will interest researchers across African Studies Security Studies Environmental Studies Political Science Global Governance International Relations and Human Geography The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Academic and Social Challenges Faced by African International Students in Collegiate Institutions in America Gbenga Okusolubo, 2018-03-13 Research Paper postgraduate from the year 2017 in the subject Guidebooks School Education Pedagogy grade 3-9 course Organizational Leadership Development language English abstract International students enrollment in higher education in the U.S. has expanded considerably in the last decades. In 2015, the United States hosted more of the world's 4.1 million international students than any other country. With the number of foreign students that come to study in the U.S., 14.5% of international students are African students with the majority of the population coming from Nigeria, Kenya, and Ghana. The U.S. is often described as the land of opportunity abroad, but this research intends to explore that perception for international students, especially African students. Many consider African international students as the gateway to local business owners in the U.S. seeking to expand a wider global horizon, especially in Africa. This research explored the different types of academic and social challenges faced by African international students in collegiate institutions in America through auto-ethnographic research and to find possible solutions to those challenges faced by African students. This is a qualitative research approach that used the sequential auto-ethnographic experience of the author as the research tool in identifying and categorizing some of the challenges faced by African international students. It is the researcher's intention that the findings in this research will be used as a guide for the next group of African international students aspiring to come to the U.S. to study.
