Even More Brain-powered Science Thomas O'Brien, 2011 The third of Thomas O'Brien's books designed for 5th grade science teachers. Black Representation in the Science Curriculum Catherine L. Quinlan, 2024-08-02 This book sheds new light on the importance of Black representation in the US science curriculum from a social cultural cognitive and scientific perspective. Weaving together content, new methodologies and science education pedagogies, it opens up new space for the meaningful inclusion of the science capital and cultural capital of Black people in the US science curricula. Drawing on ethnographic interviews with African American Gullah Geechee and research outcomes from qualitative and quantitative research and curriculum development, it brings home the importance of attending to a sense of belonging in the K-12 science curricula toward lasting equity and inclusion. The author uses applied cognitive psychology theories as frameworks to show how perceptions about the perceived value of Black representation as a way of knowing is influenced by identity, culture and social schemas. Incorporating new methodologies and approaches focused on inclusion and belonging, it will appeal to scholars, researchers, upper level and post graduate students with interest in STEM education, race and ethnicity in education, equity and research methods in education.

Designing and Teaching the Secondary Science Methods Course Aaron J. Sickel, Stephen B. Witzig, 2017-04-13 The improvement of science education is a common goal worldwide. Countries not only seek to increase the number of individuals pursuing careers in science but to improve scientific literacy among the general population. As the teacher is one of the greatest influences on student learning, a focus on the preparation of science teachers is essential in achieving these outcomes. A critical component of science teacher education is the methods course where pedagogy and content coalesce. It is here that future science teachers begin to focus simultaneously on the knowledge, dispositions and skills for teaching secondary science in meaningful and effective ways. This book provides a comparison of secondary science methods courses from teacher education programs all over the world. Each chapter provides detailed descriptions of the national context, course design, teaching strategies and assessments used within a particular science methods course and is written by teacher educators who actively research science teacher education. The final chapter provides a synthesis of common themes and unique features across contexts and offers directions for future research on science methods courses. This book offers a unique combination of behind the scenes thinking for secondary science methods course designs along with practical teaching and assessment strategies and will be a useful resource for teacher educators in a variety of international contexts.
