

Summer camp journal: day 4

15th July

{Today was a busy day!}

This morning, we went up Nook's Hill and took photos of the amazing view across the valley. It was beautiful because there were no clouds in the sky and you could see everything clearly.

Mr. Nelson showed me how to use an app to make the photos

Now they look like magazine photos!

In the afternoon, it rained so we stayed in and watched a really funny film - a comedy about some children who form a band.

After dinner, we had a bit of free time. I played a computer game with Leo which was great fun. Then Mr Nelson came and told us it was time to go to bed which wasn't so nice.

{I can't wait for the boat trip tomorrow!}

Classroom McGraw-Hill Education, 2002-07-11 Reading and Writing in the Mathematics Classroom features suggestions and activities for including reading and writing as an integral part of the mathematics curriculum. It also includes suggestions for differentiated approaches to teaching mathematics for the English Language learners and inclusion students. College Writing Toby Fulwiler, 1991 Phonics Handbook Gr 3-6, 1998-07 Writing Across the Chemistry Curriculum Jeffrey Kovac, Donna W. Sherwood, 2001 This book discusses issues surrounding a teacher implemented a writing across the curriculum program designed to improve students rhetorical and writing skills in physical science particularly chemistry. It contains practical material such as suggested assignments and strategies that can be put into practice immediately to use writing effectively. A comprehensive reference tool the advice offered in this book applies to courses throughout the entire chemistry curriculum including graduate education. Other coverage discusses designing grading and responding to writing assignments. For instructors who are considering or already offering such programs this book is a rich resource of clear step by step suggestions. Designing and Using Tools for Educational Assessment Madhabi Chatterji, 2003 This text is intended for the large group of non measurement professionals who need to know about creating assessment tools and using them for decision making. Teachers administrators and instructional support personnel will find that this book provides a balanced treatment of design validation and use of assessment tools for varied learning outcomes and needs. This treatment includes traditional and alternative assessments. The book is straightforward and applied with minimal statistical content. Numerous examples case studies tables figures and a Web site with chapter highlights and exercises support the applied focus of this book. Psychologists or those involved with educational psychology. Lost and Found David Boers, 2002 Based on the teaching experience of author David Boers and supported by literature and research in the field Lost and Found shares successful ways of developing a classroom in which learning can occur to a meaningful degree. The Journal Book Toby Fulwiler, 1987 In this book journals are seen in every situation and from every angle as if mounted on a slow turntable under a spotlight. The conclusion of most of the teachers and students using them is that they get people thinking they help them test their own experience against the ideas of many others the authorities they're studying their teachers their fellow students. The payoffs from using journals in classrooms are here shown to be astounding. Students learn from making mistakes and half forming ideas. They learn to think not by doing exercises in a faddish critical thinking textbook but by working their way through real questions with real interest and real intent.
