

Autumn

By Olivia

Everybody knows that the season we are in is autumn. My favorite part about autumn is that nature gradually changes, animals prepare for hibernation, and weather slowly alters. In addition the movement of the earth is in itself a miracle!

Autumn, otherwise known as fall has crisp cold air that people quickly need to adapt to. Many birds except for crows fly south where it's a bit warmer in early October. Crows fly south around late November. The leaves change slowly to red, orange, and yellow. This gives people the chance to gaze at this beautiful scenery for a little over two months. The smell of Pumpkin Pie makes my mouth drip when my taste buds start to water. Therefore autumn offers us a large assortment of positive changes.

Next, Red Foxes cross forests at dark gathering food to get prepared for hibernation. Squirrels chatter with other squirrels while collecting mouthful's of nuts. Migration and hibernation are two different things. Hibernation is when animals most mammals go to sleep for the whole winter! Migration is when you fly south. Mainly birds and butterflies fly south. Butterflies fly to Mexico for migration. Thus animals once again are ready for survival!

Finally, crackling dry dead fallen leaves break when kids play outside while it's still warm. The days get darker and darker as the earth rotates further and further away from the sun. Skies get a darker shade until the end of November strikes again and becomes colder and colder as the beginning of winter approaches. Everything and everyone is experiencing the various changes that are occurring prior to a white, frigid winter.

Design Principles for Teaching Effective Writing Raquel Fidalgo Redondo, Karen Harris, Martine Braaksma, 2017-11-20 This volume presents effective instructional programs focused on two perspectives on writing the teaching and learning of writing as a skill and the use of writing as a learning activity in various school subjects or skills acquisition It is focused on analysing micro design features of the programs such as learning activities supporting materials specific strategies instructional techniques but also macro design rules of intervention programs such as instructional sequence instructional stages based on research evidence provided for previous studies This volume goes beyond a practical volume because it provides additional reflection and discussion about theoretical background and empirically based evidence which support the specific intervention programs described Several chapters in this book include links to an Open Access e book where teacher and student materials for the authors instructional approaches can be found see ToC

Students at Risk of School Failure José Jesús Gázquez, José Carlos Núñez, 2018-10-18 The main objective of this Research Topic is to determine the conditions that place students at risk of school failure identifying student and context variables In spite of the fact that there is currently little doubt about how one learns and how to teach in some countries of the developed world there is still there is a high rate of school failure Although the term school failure is a very complex construct insofar as its causes consequences and development from the field of educational psychology the construct student engagement has recently gained special interest in an attempt to deal with the serious problem of school failure School engagement builds on the anatomy of the students involvement in school and describes their feelings behaviors and thoughts about their school experiences So engagement is an important component of students school experience with a close relationship to achievement and school failure Children who self set academic goals attend school regularly and on time behave well in class complete their homework and study at home are likely to interact adequately with the school social and physical environments and perform well in school In contrast children who miss school are more likely to display disruptive behaviors in class miss homework frequently exhibit violent behaviors on the playground fail subjects be retained and if the behaviors persist quit school Moreover engagement should also be considered as an important school outcome eliciting more or less supportive reactions from educators For example children who display school engaged behaviors are likely to receive motivational and instructional support from their teachers The opposite may also be true But what makes student engage more or less The relevant literature indicates that personal variables e g sensory motor neurodevelopmental cognitive motivational emotional behavior problems learning difficulties addictions social and or cultural variables e g negative family conditions child abuse cultural deprivation ethnic conditions immigration or school variables e g coexistence at school bullying cyberbullying may concurrently hinder engagement preventing the student from acquiring the learnings in the same conditions as the rest of the classmates
