

Algebra 2B Activity 2B

1. Based on the grid below, identify each function below as having an odd or even degree.

2. Assuming each of the functions must have a degree of three or less, there are three concepts that you can use (just by looking at the function's behavior) to determine if the curve is odd or even. What are they and how do you use them?

What is wrong with each of these that would get the same direction?

3. Graphs show the function's part 2 (continued) in light of that each has a  $y = 2$  line intersecting it at two points, either a  $y = 4$  value or a  $y = 0$  value. If a function is multiplicity of zero, graphs would be different.

Assuming the function does not cross the  $y = 2$  line, the function is odd. If the function crosses the  $y = 2$  line, the function is even. If the function crosses the  $y = 2$  line, the function is odd. If the function crosses the  $y = 2$  line, the function is even.

Students should be able to identify the function.
