Red die Renosters

1 "Wat maak jy?" vra Bontle toe sy vir Jan sien. Bontle trek haar neus op, want Jan sit voor 'n bak vol modder. Hy is vuil. Daar is 'n gemors op sy gesig en klere.

2 "Ek maak kleirenosters," antwoord Jan opgewonde.

3 "Jy is baie vuil", sê Bontle.

4 "Dit sal alles weer skoon kom," sê Jan. "Dit is vir 'n goese doel."

5 Bontle sien dat Jan alreeds baie kleirenosters gemaak het, wat in die son lê en droog word. Sy probeer om een van die renosters op te tel en haar vinger druk die horing in!

6 "Moenie," roep Jan. "Jy is nou net soos die renosterstropers wat renosters dood maak en hulle horings afsny."

7 "Ek het dit nie bedoel nie," sê Bontle.

8 "Ek weet, maar sonder 'n horing is 'n renoster niks nie," sig Jan. "Ek kan hulle nie verkoop as hulle nie horings het nie".

9 "Hoekom verkoop jy hulle?" vra Bontle.

10 "Ek samel geld in om die renosters te red. Weet jy dat daar in 2019 net 22 wit renosters in Suid-Afrika is wat nog leef?" sê Jan.

11 "Sjoe, dis baie min," sê sy.

Afrikaans Paper 1 Scope:

Triggers Anne Breitbarth, Henk van Riemsdijk, 2008-08-22 The concept of trigger is a core concept of Chomsky's Minimalist Program. The idea that certain types of movement are triggered by some property of the target position is at least as old as the notion that the movement of noun phrases to the subject position is triggered by their need to receive nominative case. In more recent versions of syntactic theory, triggering mechanisms are thought to regulate all of movement. Furthermore, a quite narrow range of triggering mechanisms is permitted. As is to be expected, such a restrictive approach meets a variety of difficulties. Specifically, the question is whether all triggering elements required to cover displacement of all kinds in natural language can be independently motivated. Further, how can a trigger theory, which crucially relies on the idea that all movement is obligatory, deal with apparently optional movement processes? Are features an adequate means to express the triggering function in all cases? More radically, are all movement phenomena really the result of the checking of trigger features? And what about apparent triggering factors that are external to syntax, such as prosody, can they be captured in a rigid trigger theory? In other words, could certain aspects of triggered movement be due to interface conditions? Such is the range of questions addressed by the fourteen contributions to this book. They cover a considerable range of languages, including Afrikaans, Breton, Bulgarian, Dutch, English, French, German, Gungbe, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Kiswahili, Romanian. These papers present materials, both empirical and theoretical, that will not fail to have considerable impact on the further development of the concept of trigger in syntactic theory.

Controlled Natural Language B. Davis, C.M. Keet, A. Wyner, 2018-09-12 Controlled natural languages (CNLs) are based on natural language and apply restrictions on vocabulary, grammar, and/or semantics. They fall broadly into 3 groups. Some are designed to improve communication for non-native speakers of the respective natural language; in others, the restrictions are to facilitate the use of computers to analyze texts, for example, to improve computer-aided translation; and a third group of CNLs are designed to enable reliable automated reasoning and formal knowledge representation from seemingly natural texts. This book presents the 11 papers selected from 14 submitted and delivered at the sixth in the series of workshops on Controlled Natural Language (CNL) 2018 held in Maynooth, Ireland, in August 2018. The papers cover a full spectrum of controlled natural languages, ranging from human-oriented to machine-processable controlled languages and from more theoretical results to interfaces, reasoning engines, and the real-life application of CNLs. The book will be of interest to all those working with controlled natural language, whatever their approach.

Herskovits Library of African Studies, 1972 Issues in Formal German(ic) Typology Werner Abraham, C. Jan-Wouter Zwart, 2002 This book takes up a variety of general syntactic topics which either yield different solutions in German in particular or which lead to different conclusions for theory formation One of the main topics is the fact that languages that allow for extensive scrambling between the two verbal poles V 2 and V last need to integrate discourse functions like thema and rhema into the grammatical description This is attempted in terms of Minimalism thus extending the functional domain Special attention is given to the asymmetrical scrambling behavior of indefinites vs definites and their semantic interpretation Related topics are Transitive expletive sentences types of existential sentences with either BE or HAVE the that trace phenomenon and its semantics negative polarity items ellipsis and gapping passivization double negation all of which have extensive effects both on distributional behavior and semantic disambiguation reaching far beyond effects observable in English with its rigid unscramble word order Papers, 1960 Structure Preserved C.
