Ricketts, 1996. This is the classic reference covering all important principles and techniques needed by practicing civil engineers, especially those who have to make decisions affecting planning, design, and construction.

Airports and Airport Engineering, 1958 Airport Facilities Michael T. McNerney, 1998. Thirty-nine papers from a June 1998 conference include development track presentations from planners involved with Dallas Ft. Worth, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, and metropolitan Washington airports. Coverage includes current issues in planning, design, and construction, with much discussion of various aspects of pavement, its design, analysis, construction, and rehabilitation. Eight contributions focus on the transformation of military bases to airports; in particular, the Bergstrom Air Force Base's transformation to Austin Bergstrom International Airport. Encyclopedia of Twentieth Century Architecture R. Stephen Sennott, 2004. A balance of sophistication and clarity in the writing, authoritative entries, and strong cross-referencing that links architects and structures to entries on the history and theory of the profession make this an especially useful source on a century of the world's most notable architecture. The contents feature major architects, firms, and professional issues, buildings, styles, and sites, the architecture of cities and countries, critics and historians, construction materials, and planning topics, schools, movements, and stylistic and theoretical terms. Entries include well-selected bibliographies and illustrations. Reference that rocks American Libraries, May 2005.

Airport Finance Norman Ashford, Clifton A. Moore, 1992-08-06. This book was written as an introductory text discussing the basic elements of airport finance. The material presented and the matters discussed are drawn from an international scene reflecting the international nature of aviation and the need for those involved in the airport industry to understand the structure of airport finance in this context. The authors have selected the content based on their joint knowledge of airport administration and postexperience aviation training. The draft manuscript was used as a teaching text at the airport finance course at Loughborough University in May 1990 with twenty-four postgraduate postexperience participants. Based on that experience and comments from a number of readers and reviewers, the final form of the text is that presented here. Chapter 1 deals generally with the patterns of airport ownership on a world-wide basis and describes the sources of revenues and expenditures, the manner in which they are reported, and the form in which airport accounts are reported. Because systems and practices vary among countries, the material is presented on a comparative basis. In Chapter 2

Harry Kluckhohn describes the manner in which U S airports are financed Not only will this be of interest to U S readers but it will serve as a useful guide for others who may have little knowledge of how this highly developed financing system works
