

Vehicle identification numbers

Vehicle identification numbers

Identifications are a continuing and unpreserved process in vehicle manufacturing. Since spare-parts manuals and lists are compiled on a numerical basis, the individual vehicle numbers are necessary to correctly identify the component required.

Vehicle Identification Number (VIN)

This very important identification number is located on a plate attached to the left side dashboard just inside the windshield (see illustrations). The VIN also appears on the Vehicle Certificate of Title and Registration. It contains information such as where and when the vehicle was manufactured, engine type, the model year and the body style.

Vehicle Certification Label

The Vehicle Certification label (VC label, also referred to as the Truck Safety Compliance Certification label is attached to the front of the left (driver's side) door pillar (see illustration). The upper half of the label contains the name of the manufacturer, the month and year of production, the Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR), the Gross Axle Weight Rating (GAWR) and the certification statement.

The VIN number is visible through the windshield on the driver's side.

The engine identification label is usually affixed to the valve cover.

The VC label also contains the VIN number, which is used for warranty identification of the vehicle, and provides such information as manufacturer, type of restraint system, body type, engine, transmission, model year and vehicle serial number.

Engine numbers

Labels containing the engine code, calibration and serial numbers, as well as plant name, can be found on the valve cover, as well as stamped on the engine block (see illustration). The engine code is also found as the eighth digit of the VIN code. The letter X indicates the 4.0L pushed V6, the letter E indicates the 4.0L SOHC V6, and the letter P indicates the 5.0L V8. On 2001 and later models, the letter K indicates the "Vehicle Fuel" version of the 4.0L SOHC V6 engine.

Manual transmission numbers

The manual transmission identification number and serial numbers can be found on a tag on the left or right side of the transmission main case.

Automatic transmission numbers

Tags with the automatic transmission serial number, build date and cover information are attached with a bolt, usually at the extension housing.

Vehicle Emissions Control Information (VECI) label

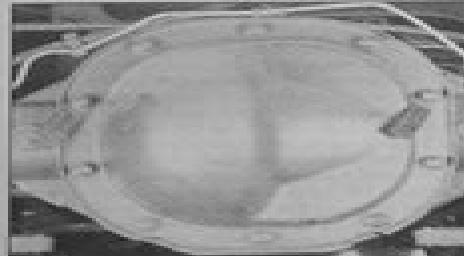

This label is found under the hood (see Chapter 8).

The vehicle certification label, also known as the Truck Safety Compliance Certification label, is located on the left front door pillar.

The transfer case identification tag is retained by a bolt at the rear of the transfer case.

The differential identification tag is bolted to the differential cover.
