The machine serial number is stamped on the serial number plate which is located inside the operator's cab. The serial number should always be furnished when ordering parts for the machine or when corresponding with the distributor or factory concerning the machine. Providing the serial number is the only way of ensuring the correct parts and/or information can be furnished.

In the event the serial number plate is not readable, a number is stamped on the same reading frame which can be used to identify the machine. The number is stamped just below the brand name cellular advertising logo.

The serial number is stamped on the machine identification plate. The machine identification plate is located at the operator's side on the right side and covers the right console. The machine serial number should always be furnished when ordering parts for the machine, or when corresponding with the distributor or factory regarding the machine. The serial number is the only method the distributor or factory has of ensuring that the correct parts will be furnished.

It is used for small numbers and values found on the machine identification plate. A number is stamped on each of the lower half cylinder mounting legs on the upper frame. The number can then be used to identify the machine.
