Adolescent Child Development Guide Study:

The Effect of Parenting on Child and Adolescence Development Yanfang Li, Bin-Bin Chen, Yufang Bian, Wenchao Ma, Lichan Liang, 2025-11-18 Families and parents have the most central and enduring influence on children's lives. Of all the modifiable factors that influence child and adolescent development and life course outcomes the important role of parenting arouses the interest of many researchers. Exploring the effect of parenting on their children's social emotional adjustment, mental health and academic achievement and its underlying mechanism could provide an extremely important reference for early intervention prevention and treatment. Despite a large number of local, national or international empirical studies in this field some questions are still open for discussion such as the underlying mechanism of the association between parents' cognition parenting practices and child development under a comprehensive system of parenting in a different demographic e.g. racial, ethnic and economic contexts, the changes of parenting accompanied with social change and era development, the interaction of parenting and other factors within family system or other external systems e.g. school and so on. For this Research Topic we adopt a broad definition of parenting including parents' opinions and feelings about their own parenting roles and parents' beliefs, attitudes, socialization goals and parenting practices toward their children. The main aim is to explore the effect of parenting on child and adolescent development including self social emotional and academic development which can help further design effective intervention programs to promote children's and adolescents' positive development via effective parenting. We are particularly interested in manuscripts focusing on the following research subtopics: 1 Theories and underlying mechanisms, mediators or moderators to explain why and how could parenting affect child and adolescent development; 2 The associations between parenting and child development in different demographic contexts or at different times; 3 The similarities and discrepancies between children and parent report about parenting and its influence on the child and adolescent development; 4 The specific effect of paternal parenting or the effect of co-parenting on child and adolescent development; 5 The potential interaction effect of parenting and other factors such as teacher, peer, grandparent and sibling on child and adolescent development. Quantitative studies e.g. cross sectional and longitudinal studies, cohort studies, experimental studies, intervention studies, meta analysis and qualitative studies e.g. interview studies, observational studies, systematic review are both welcome.

Applied Research in Child and Adolescent Development

Valerie Maholmes, Carmela Gina Lomonaco, 2011-01-11 Developed for an NIH training institute this volume is organized around the most frequently asked questions by researchers starting their careers in applied research in child and adolescent development. With contributions from the leading scholars in the field actual research experiences highlight the challenges one faces in conducting such research. The techniques and theoretical frameworks most suitable for guiding the applied research process are reviewed along with related ethical and cultural considerations. Each chapter features the authors' introduction to their own careers in applied research. Also included are practical tips, case studies and sidebars featuring frequently asked questions This practical resource provides tips on how to Modify the most frequently used methodological techniques while maintaining the integrity of the data Manage the unpredictable nature of real world research Frame community relevant research questions in an academically acceptable way Secure funding to conduct applied research Disseminate the research results so as to have the greatest impact on policy and practice The book opens with the most frequently asked questions tips on getting started in an applied research career and an overview of and theoretical framework for generating applied developmental research ideas Section 2 focuses on research designs including the most frequently used methodological and measurement techniques and tips on how to modify them to applied settings Ethical challenges and cultural issues in working with special populations are also addressed Section 3 focuses on conducting applied research in school community and clinical settings with an emphasis on the challenges encountered when conducting actual research as opposed to the more controlled settings taught in a classroom Guidelines for protecting the populations involved in the study and strategies for recruiting and retaining participants are also addressed The book concludes with strategies for disseminating research findings so as to have the greatest impact on policy and practice for publishing research and for securing funding Intended as a practical guide this book is ideal for those just starting their careers in applied research for students preparing their dissertations and for the faculty who prepare these students The book's accessible approach also appeals to researchers in the behavioral social and health sciences education and those in government and industry
