Fetal Alcohol Syndrome and Fetal Alcohol Effects E.L. Abel, 2012-12-06 I have written this book because I felt there was a need to bring together in one place the vast amount of research that has been published in the past 10 years concerning alcohol's effects on the conceptus My hope is that this book will be of value to the many clinicians basic research scientists social workers and others who are interested in this important issue The number of such publications continues to grow each year and it was a very difficult task to review even a proportion of them completely While I have cited many of these research studies only those that in my very subjective opinion warranted extended coverage were discussed In this regard much of my task was facilitated by the many excellent reviews that have already been written To those whose important contributions have not been discussed or cited I offer my sincere apologies Omission of these publications in most cases reflects my own personal interests or awareness rather than merit

It is a form of brain injury caused by alcohol usage by the mother during pregnancy and is more prevalent in our world than many people are aware of. 9 out of every 1000 births are FAS births. ADHD and Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD) Kieran D. O'Malley, 2007 This multi author book will discuss the history and clinical presentation of Foetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders FASD i.e. Fetal Alcohol Syndrome FAS and Alcohol Related Neurodevelopmental Disorder ARND. These developmental neuropsychiatric disorders result from prenatal exposure to alcohol during any gestational period of pregnancy. The book will particularly address the co occurring presence of ADHD in patients with FASD. ADHD is the most frequent neuropsychiatric presentation of FASD throughout the lifespan and it is particularly difficult to manage because the underlying pathophysiology is related to prenatal neurotoxic brain injury.

Although prenatal alcohol exposure and the resulting FASD is recognised as the commonest preventable cause of intellectual disability many clinicians and educators are not aware that 75 to 80% of the patients with FASD have IQs over 70. Thus the neuropsychiatric presentation of FASD can often be unrecognised or misunderstood. FASD are the true clinical masqueraders and ADHD is their most likely disguise. The authors are all experienced professionals from a wide range of disciplines working throughout the USA and Canada. They have been involved in the diagnosis, research and management of FASD for many years and this book will bring their collective knowledge regarding management from infancy to adulthood to an interprofessional audience.

Pregnancy and Alcohol Consumption Joshua D. Hoffman, 2011. Prenatal alcohol exposure has been directly implicated in a wide range of deficits that adversely influence the development of affected individuals. Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) is an umbrella term referring to a continuum of effects that occur in individuals who were prenatally exposed to alcohol. FASD is a permanent birth defect and a leading cause of mental retardation and developmental delay. This book gathers the latest research in the study of pregnancy and alcohol consumption from authors around the globe, including the biochemistry of prenatal alcohol exposure, research on interventions to prevent alcohol consumption during pregnancy, medico-legal considerations concerning foetal alcohol spectrum disorders, life as an adult with foetal alcohol syndrome, and biological markers of exposure of the foetus to alcohol during pregnancy.

Report on the Symposium on Fetal Alcohol Syndrome and Fetal Alcohol Effects, 1992. Reports proceedings of a symposium held to gain a better understanding of the dimensions of the foetal alcohol syndrome and foetal alcohol effects (FAS/FAE) to identify priorities for action and to identify appropriate roles and mechanisms for moving forward to address the FAS/FAE issue. The report begins with keynote speeches followed by reports from the workshops on prevention, mobilizing the health field, making systems more responsive, responding to immediate needs at risk groups, and building momentum. Appendices include a symposium agenda, notes on the comments and views presented in panel discussions, a statement from Aboriginal participants, and a participant list.

Prevention of Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) Sterling, Clarren, Amy, Salmon, Egon, Jonsson, 2011-05-09. Exposing a developing embryo or fetus to alcohol can produce life long brain damage with neurological, cognitive and behavioural consequences. The implications of fetal alcohol spectrum disorder for the affected individual and the family are devastating. The social and economic burden to society is enormous with formidable expenditures in health care, mental health care, education, social services and possibly correctional services. Prevention has been a goal since the condition was medically described and defined forty years ago but has remained elusive but feasible. This book reviews the evidence for effective strategies. It lays out what needs to be done. The book should be of great value to policy makers, clinicians, researchers and others advocating for action against this condition that is reducing the potential of our society and sapping its resources.
