

The Scarlet Ibis

Character Analysis

The story primarily focuses on two central characters: the narrator, who remains unnamed throughout the story, but is referred to as "Brother," and his younger brother, William Armstrong, who is nicknamed "Doodle." Here's a character analysis of these two key characters:

Brother (The Narrator):

- Prideful and Ambitious: Brother is a complex character driven by his own pride and ambition. He is determined to teach Doodle to walk because he doesn't want to be burdened with a disabled sibling and wishes to avoid embarrassment.
- Caring and Protective: Despite his initial feelings of embarrassment, Brother genuinely cares for Doodle. He pushes Doodle to learn to walk out of a desire for him to be "normal" and fit in with other children.
- Conflicted and Guilt-Ridden: As the story unfolds, Brother becomes increasingly conflicted about his motivations and actions. He experiences guilt and regret for pushing Doodle too hard and ultimately causing his death.
- Dynamic Character: Brother undergoes significant character development throughout the story. His initial feelings of pride and self-centeredness evolve into genuine love and regret as he comes to terms with the consequences of his actions.

Doodle (William Armstrong):

- Physically Disabled: Doodle is born with physical disabilities that make him unable to walk. He is described as having a fragile and weak appearance.
- Determined and Resilient: Despite his physical limitations, Doodle possesses inner strength and determination. He is eager to please his brother and learned to crawl and walk with the help of Brother's guidance.
- Innocent and Trusting: Doodle is portrayed as innocent and trusting, especially in his relationship with Brother. He believes in Brother's intentions and follows his lead, even when it is physically challenging for him.
- Tragic Figure: Doodle's character represents the tragic figure who suffers due to the pride and ambition of others. His death serves as a poignant reminder of the consequences of pushing someone beyond their physical and emotional limits.

Critical Approaches to Teaching the High School Novel Crag Hill, Victor Malo-Juvera, 2018-10-25. This edited collection will turn a critical spotlight on the set of texts that has constituted the high school canon of literature for decades. By employing a set of fresh, vibrant critical lenses such as youth studies and disabilities studies that are often unfamiliar to advanced students and scholars of secondary English, this book provides divergent approaches to traditional readings and pedagogical practices surrounding these familiar works. By introducing and applying these interpretive frames to the field of secondary English education, this book demonstrates that there is more to say about these texts, ways to productively problematize them, and to reconfigure how they may be read and used in the classroom.

Elements of Literature Gordon W. Brown, 2001. When Kids Can't Read, what Teachers Can Do G. Kylene Beers, 2003. For Kylene Beers, the question of what to do when kids can't read surfaced in 1979 when she met and began teaching a boy named George. When George's parents asked her to explain why he couldn't read and how she could help, Beers, a secondary-certified English teacher with no background in reading, realized she had little to offer. That moment sent her on a twenty-three year search for answers to the question: How do we help middle and high schoolers who can't read? Now she shares what she has learned and shows teachers how to help struggling readers with comprehension, vocabulary, fluency, word recognition, and motivation. Filled with student transcripts, detailed strategies, reproducible material, and extensive booklists, Beers' guide to teaching reading both instructs and inspires.
