

Writing a thesis is a daunting task for many students. It requires extensive research, critical thinking, and the ability to articulate complex ideas in a cohesive and well-structured manner. The process can be overwhelming and time-consuming, leaving many students feeling stressed and anxious. This is especially true for those who are juggling multiple responsibilities such as work, family, and other academic commitments.

One of the biggest challenges of writing a thesis is choosing a topic. It needs to be unique, relevant, and interesting enough to sustain your interest for an extended period of time. This can be a daunting task, as there is a vast amount of existing research and literature on most topics. It can be overwhelming to sift through all the information and determine which direction to take your thesis.

Once you have chosen a topic, the next hurdle is conducting thorough research. This involves reading and analyzing a significant amount of literature, collecting data, and organizing your findings. It can be a time-consuming and tedious process, but it is crucial to ensure the validity and credibility of your thesis.

Another challenge that students face when writing a thesis is the writing process itself. It requires a high level of academic writing skills, including proper citation and referencing. Many students struggle with this aspect, as it is a significant departure from the writing style they are used to in other academic assignments. Moreover, the pressure to produce a well-written and polished thesis can be overwhelming, leading to writer's block and procrastination.

Bournemouth University Media School course Strategic Marketing language English. abstract: Creating a sustainable marketing strategy for Ryanair means to organise its future. Above all, it is important to answer the question: What business are we in by defining the industry the organisation is competing in, since this gives the opportunity to identify competitive advantages relatively to others. Kay 1993. Ryanair is positioned as being in the European low budget airline industry. This creates a competitor group consisting of other European no-frills airlines and low budget sub-brands of traditional airlines but excludes full service airlines.
