New Approaches for Improving Equity in Mental Health Research, Treatment, and Policy Edmund Howe,Virginia A. Brown,Lexi C. White,Julia Knopes,Joanne Suarez,2025-10-14

Centering the perspectives of people living with serious mental illness from the research question to data analysis to dissemination of findings can improve our understanding of how to best meet the needs of those living with a range of psychiatric conditions Thus elevating the voices of persons with lived experience is central to closing the discovery gap from the bench to the bedside to the community thereby improving the health and health care of all involved In this Research Topic we seek to explore research that focuses on mental health policy and clinical and community health based interventions intended to better meet the needs of persons whose experiences are too frequently omitted We invite submissions that assess ethical challenges and opportunities around the inclusion of people with serious mental illness in all stages of the research process including design data collection analysis and dissemination of findings Furthermore this call seeks to include persons Living with mental health conditions that are invisible to others From underrepresented communities e g Black Latinx LGBTQ Whose values and experiences around mental illness are informed by cultural beliefs beyond biomedicine Whose access to care is limited by either geography i e urban suburban rural or whose access to care can vary depending on their regional national or international setting The guest editors for this upcoming issue of Frontiers in Psychiatry are committed to the inclusion of underrepresented issues authors and perspectives to further public discourse as we strive to improve the health and health care of people living with mental illness We encourage authors to submit a range of article types including original research editorials brief research report and mini reviews focusing on cutting edge innovations in preventing treating and improving mental health care for persons living with mental illness These contributions may include recent therapeutic developments at the forefront of psychiatric care as well as emerging topics As guest editors we strive for inclusion we welcome all identities appreciate and respect individual values and convictions and welcome authors with diverse perspectives experiences and backgrounds We hope to offer new challenges and insights for policymakers and mental health providers alike that will guide their work both now and into the future

Brain effects of Nicotine and derived compounds Valentina Echeverria Moran, Epidemiological studies have associated tobacco consumption with a lower incidence of Alzheimer's disease AD and Parkinson's disease PD. The neuroprotective effect of tobacco has been mainly attributed to the stimulation by nicotine of the $\alpha 7$ nicotinic acetylcholine receptors nAChRs which are implicated in neuronal survival, attention and memory. A reduction in cholinergic function including lower levels of the expression of nAChRs in the hippocampus correlates with memory impairment in AD and schizophrenia. Nicotine main metabolite cotinine shows similar neuroprotective and mnemonic properties. Also, cotinine reduced Alzheimer's pathology in a mouse model of the disease. Tobacco derived compounds can be beneficial in a broad range of neurological disorders such as schizophrenia, AD, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and PD, as well as in diminishing tobacco withdrawal. In the latest years numerous new discoveries in this research area have been achieved and a Research Topic publication is needed.

Plant Molecular Farming for the Production of Next-Generation Vaccines and Biologics - Prospects and Challenges, 2024-03-11 Infectious diseases are still a major threat to public health. The vaccine remains the most important and safer way of combating infectious diseases. Therefore, there is an urgent need to look for new ways of vaccine generation that can cut down production costs and processing time. The development of rDNA technology allows the expression and purification of proteins in unlimited quantity, thus opening an avenue for the development of protein-based vaccines as a prophylactic measure against infectious diseases. Recombinant therapeutic proteins derived from biological sources including mammalian cells, microorganisms, suspension cultures or genetically modified organisms by employing biotechnological processes are widely used in clinical applications, especially for the treatment and prevention of human or veterinary infections. Since the development of human insulin by utilizing recombinant DNA technology in E. coli in the 1980s, the recombinant therapeutic protein production field has significantly grown and gained major attention. Plant molecular farming, the production of biologics in plant cells or transgenic plants, could offer a cost-effective, adaptable strategy to produce biologics, particularly in low-resource settings. Molecular farming-based strategies could provide an alternative strategy to traditional biologics or vaccine production, enabling rapid development, effective deployment, and safe administration of vaccines. The concept of PMF was initially documented three decades back when recombinant growth hormone was produced in tobacco and sunflower plants. Even with such a long history of significant advantages and several proof-of-concept studies, very few plant-derived therapeutic products have been clinically translated. However the recent progress around the approval of the plant based biopharmaceutical ZMapp by the FDA, Medicago's COVID 19 vaccine by Health Canada and the safety of a few plant derived vaccines in clinical trials have displayed the potential of a plant platform for biopharmaceutical production. Furthermore constant efforts are being made with respect to the optimization of expression techniques downstream processing and defining standard guidelines for plant products to make an impact of plant derived products on an array of applications

Up to date facts and figures on enrollments, tuition and fees, academic programs, campus environment, available financial aid and much more make the 28th edition of Profiles of American Colleges. America's most authoritative data source for college bound high school students, their parents and high school guidance counselors. More than 1,650 accredited four year colleges are profiled. An interactive CD ROM enclosed with the directory guides students to specific schools when they enter details describing their personal academic plans and aptitudes. In addition to the above cited information, each college profile gives details on Admission requirements, Library and computer facilities, Admissions procedures for freshmen, Campus safety and security, Thumbnail descriptions of faculty, Requirements for a degree, Athletic facilities, Extracurricular activities, E-mail addresses, College fax numbers and web sites, Admissions Contacts and much more. Schools are rated according to Barron's well known competitiveness scale from Noncompetitive to Most Competitive. Unlike some other publications, Barron's refrains from the unreliable practice of ranking colleges on a first through last basis. The book's tinted pages section presents a quick reference Index of College Majors that lists all available major study programs at each school.
