Historical Affects and the Early Modern Theater Ronda Arab, Michelle Dowd, Adam Zucker, 2015-05-15 This collection of original essays honors the groundbreaking scholarship of Jean E Howard by exploring cultural and economic constructions of affect in the early modern theater While historicist and materialist inquiry has dominated early modern theater studies in recent years the historically specific dimensions of affect and emotion remain underexplored This volume brings together these lines of inquiry for the first time exploring the critical turn to affect in literary studies from a historicist perspective to demonstrate how the early modern theater showcased the productive interconnections between historical contingencies and affective attachments Considering well known plays such as Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra and Thomas Dekker's The

Shoemaker's Holiday together with understudied texts such as court entertainments and examining topics ranging from dramatic celebrity to women's political agency to the parental emotion of grief this volume provides a fresh and at times provocative assessment of the historical affects financial emotional and socio political that transformed Renaissance theater Instead of treating history and affect as mutually exclusive theoretical or philosophical contexts the essays in this volume ask readers to consider how drama emplaces the most personal unspeakable passions in matrices defined in part by financial exchange by erotic desire by gender by the material body and by theatricality itself As it encourages this conversation to take place the collection provides scholars and students alike with a series of new perspectives not only on the plays emotions and histories discussed in its pages but also on broader shifts and pressures animating literary studies today The Literary

There is much debate about postfeminism what it is and its role in feminist politics Whilst postfeminism has become increasingly influential in the study of literature popular culture and philosophy it has so far received comparatively little attention in law This book aims to remedy this situation The book brings together feminist legal scholars working in different contexts to examine the idea of postfeminism and assess its contemporary relevance It explores a range of questions including the following Does postfeminism describe an age that follows modernism an age where identity politics has realised its goals and feminism is no longer needed Or does postfeminism describe the feminism of a postmodernist age where identity can mean anything at all Or differently again does the term capture a new feminism that discredits feminism and attempts to reshape its political consciousness And what might the answers to these questions mean for law and legal theory and a feminist politics of law reform Islamic Economic Studies, 2014 Proceedings of the United States Naval
