Dolphins

Dolphins are some of the most playful and intelligent animals on the planet. Dolphins live only in the water, but they are not fish. Dolphins are warm blooded mammals. They give birth to live babies and the babies drink milk from their mother. Dolphins cannot breathe water like fish, they have to go to the surface to breathe through a blowhole on the top of their head. Dolphins have a flap that covers their blowhole while underwater and opens to exhale when they reach the surface.

Dolphins are very social animals, meaning they like to live with other dolphins. They travel in groups called pods. A female dolphin is called a cow, a male dolphin is called a bull, and a baby dolphin is called a calf. There are about 43 different types of dolphins. Most of those live in saltwater but there is another type of dolphin, known as a river dolphin, that lives in freshwater. The most famous type of dolphin is the Bottlenose Dolphin, but did you know that a killer whale is also a dolphin? Orcas are the largest dolphins of all.

Dolphins communicate with each other through a series of clicks, whistles, and squeaks, along with body language. Each dolphin has its own unique sound! Dolphins are carnivores and mostly eat fish and squid. Dolphins hunt together, herding fish into groups so they can be easily caught. Dolphins do not chew their food, they just swallow it whole - their teeth are only for catching prey. On average, dolphins live for about 40 years.
