1. The first step in solving a system of linear equations is to write each equation in slope-intercept form. This allows you to compare the slopes of the two lines. If the slopes are different, the lines are not parallel and the system has one solution. If the slopes are the same, the lines are either parallel (no solution) or coincident (infinitely many solutions). To determine if the lines are parallel, coincident, or have one solution, you can compare the slopes and y-intercepts of the two equations. If the slopes are different, the lines are not parallel and the system has one solution. If the slopes are the same and the y-intercepts are different, the lines are parallel and the system has no solution. If the slopes are the same and the y-intercepts are the same, the lines are coincident and the system has infinitely many solutions.
