Forensic Practice in the Community Zoë Ashmore, Richard Shuker, 2014-08-01 Forensic practice in the community is a neglected subject. There are many books looking at forensic work in secure settings such as prisons or hospitals but very little has been written about forensic practice in the community. This book describes the current and exciting developments in this area for both young people and adults by leaders in their field. It is in the community where interventions with those who have offended are all ultimately tested. Bringing together a range of experts from both the practitioner and academic community this book covers multisystemic therapy for families, sexual and violent offending, learning disabilities, substance misuse, risk assessment, prediction and management, personality disordered offenders, resettlement following custody, desistance of criminal behaviour, community interventions. Beginning with an overview of forensic practice in the community, the book addresses policy, practice and ethical issues focusing on the specific dilemmas facing practitioners and providing an analysis of international perspectives. It describes how to meet the challenge of significantly diverting and reducing the prison population through more effective community intervention with adults and young people and also makes suggestions for the future. This book offers a range of recent case studies, has descriptions of new areas of community practice by those working or studying in that area and covers cutting edge developments in practice and policy. It will be of interest to academics, practitioners and students in forensic psychology as well as social workers, probation officers, youth offending officers, police officers, criminal justice agencies and mental health professionals.

Fishery Bulletin, 2012 Handbook of Citizen Science in Ecology and Conservation Christopher Andrew Lepczyk, Owen D. Boyle, Timothy L. V. Vargo, 2020

Handbook of Citizen Science in Ecology and Conservation is the first practical and comprehensive manual that provides step by step instructions for creating natural science research projects that involve collaboration between scientists and the general public. As citizen science projects become increasingly common there is a growing need for concrete best practices around planning and implementing successful projects that can allow project leaders to guide and gauge success of projects while ensuring the collection of high quality data. Based on a variety of case studies from several citizen science projects this is the definitive reference guide for all potential citizen science practitioners ranging from professors and graduate students to staff at agencies and nongovernmental organizations.

Urban Ecology Philip James, Ian Douglas, 2023-12-22 This fully revised second edition reflects the great expansion in urban ecology research, action and teaching since 2015. Urban ecology provides an understanding of urban ecosystems and uses nature based techniques to enhance habitats and alleviate poor environmental conditions. Already the home to the majority of the world's people, urban areas continue to grow, causing ecological changes throughout the world. To help students of all professions caring for urban areas and the people, animals and plants that live in them, the authors set out the environmental and ecological science of cities, linkages between urban nature and human health, urban food production in cities and how we can value urban nature. The authors explore our responsibilities for urban nature and greening ecological management techniques and the use of nature based solutions to achieve a better more sustainable urban future and ensure that cities can climate change and become more beautiful and more sustainable places in which to live This text provides the student and the practitioner with a critical scientific overview of urban ecology that will be a key source of data and ideas for studies and for sound urban management

Optimizing the Delivery of Multiple Ecosystem Goods and Services in Agricultural Systems Maria A. Tsiafouli,Evangelia G. Drakou,Alberto Orgiazzi,Katarina Hedlund,Karl Ritz,2017-10-18

Agricultural land is subjected to a variety of societal pressures as demands for food animal feed and biomass production increase with an added requirement to simultaneously maintain natural areas and mitigate climatic and environmental impacts The biotic elements of agricultural systems interact with the abiotic environment to generate a number of ecosystem functions that offer services benefiting humans across many scales of time and space The intensification of agriculture generally reduces biodiversity including that within soil and impacts negatively upon a number of regulating and supporting ecosystem services There is a global need toward achieving sustainable agricultural systems as also highlighted in the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals There is hence a need for management regimes that enhance both agricultural production and the associated provision of multiple ecosystem services The articles of this Research Topic enhance our knowledge of how management practices applied to agricultural systems affect the delivery of multiple ecosystem services and how trade offs between provisioning regulating and supporting services can be handled both above and below ground They also show the diversity of topics that need to be considered within the framework of ecosystem services delivered by agricultural systems from knowledge on basic concepts and newly proposed frameworks to a focus on specific ecosystem types such as grasslands and high nature value farmlands pollinator habitats and soil habitats This diversity of topics indicates the need for broader scope research integrated with targeted scientific research to promote sustainable agricultural practices and to ensure food security
