Amy Zschaber azschaber@stancoe.org

UNIT LESSONS

This unit is designed to build connections between science, math, history, and art. Students will learn about aerial perspective, simple machines, medieval war machines, and medieval architecture. In groups, students will synthesize what they learn to design, sketch, and build their own medieval castles using recycled materials. The culmination of the unit is a medieval siege tournament wherein students use their "Quick Build" catapults to attack other castles. In order to survive the siege, students must build a strong castle, and a working medieval war machine.
