

STATE FLOAT

The float is a creative representation of North Carolina, featuring a variety of information and imagery. The main body is a black cardboard box with a white leopard print pattern, prominently displaying "North Carolina". On top of the box are several small photographs showing different aspects of the state, including a person in traditional dress, a landscape, and a building. A green banner with the words "NORTH CAROLINA" in large, colorful, block letters is placed across the middle. Numerous handwritten cards provide facts about the state, such as its status as the first Southern state to secede during the Civil War, its nickname "The Tar Heel State", and its diverse landscapes and wildlife. One card mentions "Charlotte is the major city in North Carolina". Another card states "One tourist attraction is The Biltmore Estate because it is the largest private home in the United States. The mansion has 250 rooms and it has the Italian Garden. It also has the Rose Garden which features more than 260 varieties." A third card notes "The flag has a N and S on either side of the white star because it stands for North Carolina. Until 1895 the flag was slightly different. The lower date was May 20, 1776, the day North Carolina declared from the Great Britain during the Civil War." A fourth card says "The state bird is a cardinal." A fifth card mentions "North Carolina is called the 'Tar Heel State' because of the pitch or tar used to seal the ship's hulls. In North Carolina, the word 'tar' is pronounced like 'tair'." A sixth card states "The state flower is the bluebell." A seventh card says "The state tree is the longleaf pine." A eighth card mentions "The state animal is the Carolina parakeet."
