

Digestive system, poem

Digestive system

I'm the mouth and I've got teeth
at the top, and underneath.
Chop the food up nice and small,
so we can digest it all!

I am the oesophagus;
I take food in a bolus
to the stomach deep within for digestion to begin.

In the stomach there's no rest – lots of juices, they're the best at dissolving all our food so that it will do us good.

There is lots of acid here,
hydrochloric, that is clear,
kills the germs and makes enough digestive enzymes do their stuff.

Into the small intestine
where the food goes next in line.
It's a long tube, there's no doubt, several metres all stretched out.

Much digestion goes on here, enzymes come from the liver
to break down the proteins fast, carbohydrates, fats are last.

Next the colon, it's quite fat, takes the liquid out, and that means that what's left, our faeces, can come out from us with ease.

Most important in all this –
what we call peristalsis.
Squeezes food along the tract
so that digestion can act.

The anus is last to show
in our bottoms, as you know.
Out come faeces, briefly seen,
as they drop in the latrine.
