

Chapter 6: The American Revolution (1754-1783)

Causes of the American Revolution:

- Tensions between the colonies and Britain escalated due to grievances such as taxation without representation, restrictions on colonial trade, and the presence of British troops.
- The French and Indian War (1754-1763), also known as the Seven Years' War, increased Britain's debt and led to attempts to raise revenue from the colonies through measures like the Sugar Act and the Stamp Act.

Resistance and Rebellion:

- Colonists responded to British policies with various forms of resistance, including boycotts of British goods and the formation of organizations like the Sons of Liberty.
- The Stamp Act Congress (1765) brought together colonial representatives to protest the Stamp Act and assert their rights as English subjects.
- The Boston Massacre in 1770, where British soldiers killed several colonists, further heightened tensions and anti-British sentiment.
- The Boston Tea Party in 1773 was a notable act of protest against the Tea Act, in which colonists dumped British tea into the harbor.

Declaration of Independence:

- The Second Continental Congress, convened in 1775, assumed the role of colonial government and established the Continental Army under the command of George Washington.
- In 1776, the Congress issued the Declaration of Independence, drafted by Thomas Jefferson, which justified the colonists' decision to separate from Britain and asserted natural rights, such as life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.
- The declaration also listed a series of grievances against King George III, including his violation of colonial rights and his role in maintaining a standing army without consent.
