DOODLE NOTES

MITOSIS

WHAT IS MITOSIS AND HOW DOES IT HELP THE BODY REPAIR ITSELF?

Mitosis is one method of cell division that can occur in eutotipical cells. It is part of the cell cycle, alternating with interphase. The function of mitosis is important for maintaining the number of cells. When the genes in the cell undergo changes, it is called mutation. To some extent, all dividing plants, animals, and the microscopic organisms.

CHROMOSOMES VS CHROMATIDS

Chromosomes are collections of tightly packed DNA. During interphase, the cell's DNA replicates, so there are two sister chromatids. Each chromatid is made of two sister chromatids. When the sister chromatids are joined together, they are called chromosomes. They are only called chromosomes when they are joined together.

PROPHASE

Inside the nucleus, the DNA condenses into chromosomes. The nuclear envelope starts to break down. Many of proteins called microtubules start to move to opposite ends of the cell, which are known as "poles". They pull together to form a spindle in the center.

METAPHASE

The chromosomes are now free in the cytoplasm. Each chromosome has formed spindle fibers, collectively known as the spindle. The chromosomes line up along the middle of the cell and attach to the spindle by their centromeres.

ANAPHASE

The spindle fibers contract, separating the sister chromatids. Once they are separated, we refer to them as chromosomes again. They are pulled by their centromeres to poles of the cell. As they are pulled along microtubules, they appear "aligned".

TELOPHASE

When the chromosomes reach the poles of the cell, they begin to untangle, becoming larger and thicker. A nuclear envelope will form around each group of chromosomes and the cytoplasm will start to divide in the process of cytokinesis.

DAUGHTER CELLS

When the cell division has fully completed, the cell is no longer available. The cells are genetically alike. They are in contact with each other and so they are a cell. They are in contact, preparing for the next round.
