Rethinking Value-Added Models in Education Audrey Amrein-Beardsley, 2014-04-24 Since passage of the No Child Left Behind Act in 2001 academic researchers econometricians and statisticians have been exploring various analytical methods of documenting students academic progress over time Known as value added models VAMs these methods are meant to measure the value a teacher or school adds to student learning from one year to the next To date however there is very little evidence to support the trustworthiness of these models What is becoming increasingly evident yet often ignored mainly by policymakers is that VAMs are 1 unreliable 2 invalid 3 nontransparent 4 unfair 5 fraught with measurement errors and 6 being inappropriately used to make consequential decisions regarding such things as teacher pay retention and termination Unfortunately their unintended consequences are not fully recognized at this point either Given such the timeliness of this well researched and thoughtful book cannot be overstated This book sheds important light on the debate surrounding VAMs and thereby offers states and practitioners a highly important resource from which they can move forward in more research based ways

Home, School and Work M. P. Carter, 2013-10-22 Home School and Work A Study of the Education and Employment of Young People in Britain describes the events during the period of transition from school to work This book is divided into 16 chapters that consider the influences of home and school in young people's behavior and attitude The opening chapters survey the attitudes towards school leaving school and starting work including views about the school leaving age in Britain The next chapters discuss the extent of knowledge about work in general and about particular occupations as well as methods of finding work These topics are followed by descriptions of formal and informal reception and initiation into the world of work along with the attitudes towards employers and other workers This text also looks into the number and frequency of job changes and the reasons for the changes A chapter examines the attitudes towards Trade Unions and the link between education and employment The closing chapters deal with the changes in leisure activities and in pocket money The relative importance of school work and leisure is also discussed
