

These data demonstrate a clear relationship between the number of children in the household and the number of children in the household who are in the labor force. The number of children in the household who are in the labor force is positively related to the number of children in the household. This relationship is not statistically significant at the 5% level, but it is statistically significant at the 10% level. This suggests that the number of children in the household is a good predictor of the number of children in the household who are in the labor force.

and a comprehensive understanding of the factors that influence the effectiveness of the intervention. The authors also discuss the importance of ongoing evaluation and monitoring of the intervention's impact on the community, and the need for a multi-sectoral approach to address the complex nature of the problem.
